Air Raids Over North Intensified

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers made heavy raids today on North Vietnam for the second successive day as more South Vietnamese forces retreated from Laos under heavy enemy attack. Saigon announced that 10,000 men had been pulled back across the border.

Informed sources indicated that scores of planes made the raids and that they were the heaviest against North Vietnam since last November.

The U.S. Command said the American pilots hit surface-to-air missile—SAM—sites, anti-aircraft gun positions and supply depots from the demilitarized zone at the 17th parallel to the 19th parallel, a distance of about 175 miles.

Sunday Raids

The same categories of targets and in the same area were hit by the American raiders Sunday.

"In determined efforts to protect American lives," the U.S. announcement said, "we have conducted again today limited protective reaction air strikes against missile and anti-aircraft gun sites and related support facilities in North Vietnam, south of the 19th Parallel.

"This protective reaction was in response to attacks on our unarmed reconnaissance aircraft and attacks on aircraft intercepting North Vietnamese supply routes in Laos. There is nothing further to add at this time."

Troops in Laos

A South Vietnamese spokesman, Lt. Col. Tran Van An, said 12,000 government troops were still in Laos and that they now hold three fire bases.

Field reports said the drive was nearing an end and that the strength actually was below 12,000 troops.

An said the westernmost South Vietnamese units in Laos are now eight miles from the Vietnamese border, more than 17 miles from their point of deep penetration.

The Saigon command claimed that more than 12,000 Hanoi troops have been killed in the six-week-old drive to cut the Ho Chi Minh trail network. But the South Vietnamese admitted heavy losses themselves: 1,031 killed, 219 missing and 3,985 wounded, a total of 5,235 casualties, or about 25 per cent of the 22,000-man invasion force.

Artillery Duels

As the South Vietnamese returned to South Vietnam by U.S. helicopter or made their way overland, artillery duels raged across the border and U.S. warplanes exchanged missiles with batteries in North Vietnam.

The South Vietnamese claimed that their marines and U.S. bombers supporting them killed 600 North Vietnamese in a four-day battle around Fire Base Delta in Laos that ended just before dawn today. But 85 of the South Vietnamese marines were killed and 38 wounded.

Heavy attacks also were reported on U.S. infantrymen and armored columns along Highway 9 on the Vietnamese side of the border. Several tanks and armored personnel carriers were knocked out of action by rocket grenades and mines.

The U.S. Command reported one clash between Lang Vei and the Laotian border. A spokesman said two Americans in an armored column were killed and three wounded. Enemy losses were not known.

Two more U.S. helicopters also were downed in Laos today, with two crewmen killed and the others rescued.

53 Men Refused Order

Mutinous Troops Forgiven

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

KHE SANH, Vietnam (AP) — A commanding general said today he does not plan to take disciplinary action against 53 of his men who refused an order to move forward to secure a damaged helicopter and their commanding officer's armored vehicle.

"I suppose if I went by the book, we could take them out and shoot them for refusing an order in the face of the enemy," said Brig. Gen. John J. Hill, "but they're back in the field, doing their duty. I don't think it should be blown out of proportion."

The commander of the reluctant armored cavalry troop, Capt. Carlos A. Poveda, was relieved of his command. Hill, commanding general of the 1st Brigade, 5th Mechanized Division, said the captain "made an error in tactics" that resulted in his losing control of his unit when he became separated from it.

Two Platoons

The men who balked were members of two platoons of Bravo Troop, 1st Squadron, 1st Cavalry, American Division.

They are temporarily assigned to Hill's division in the northwest corner of South Vietnam, supporting the South Vietnamese invasion of Laos.

A similar incident occurred in the Americal Division in August 1969 when an infantry company refused to go forward after five days of heavy casualties on a mountain held by the North Vietnamese.

Hill told newsmen the incident occurred late Saturday night. Informed sources gave this account.

Enemy Ambush

The armored unit had tried for several hours to move forward and dislodge an enemy ambush on Highway 9 between Lang Vei and the Laotian border nearby. Three times the two platoons of Bravo Troop moved up, ran into heavy resistance and pulled back to wait for their heavy weapons and air support to soften up the enemy.

On the third move forward, the troop commander's armored personnel carrier hit a mine as the unit again pulled back, and the platoons became separated and disorganized. Just before dark, two other armored personnel carriers moved up the highway and picked up the troop commander and his crew, including one wounded man.

Ordered to Move

Shortly after that a helicopter made a forced landing behind the abandoned command vehicle, but the crew of the chopper removed safely.

About 8:30 p.m., Bravo Troop was ordered to move forward again to secure the helicopter and the command vehicle, but the men refused to go. Hill was informed and sent the squadron commander, Lt. Col. Gene L. Breeding to talk to the men. He spoke with the men of the two platoons but 53 of them—not including their officers or platoon sergeants—still refused to go forward.

Breeding decided not to take further action at that time. Another armored unit was sent out Sunday morning, and it secured the armored personnel carrier and the helicopter. Bravo Troop remained in the field Sunday, but Hill replaced Poveda with one of his own officers.

Bravo Troop later was pulled back and attached to a unit of the 5th Mechanized Division. The remainder of Breeding's squadron from the Americal Division was pulled back for refitting to give Breeding a chance to strengthen his control over the unit. He took it over 12 days ago.

Hill told newsmen the current operation represents "a marked change in the war for these men. . . . The guy who has been used to being the hunter finds he's the hunted."

21 Pairs of Cities

Railpax Routings Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Railroad Passenger Corporation announced Monday its decision on routes and schedules between 21 pairs of cities for the new Railpax Passenger System, beginning May 1.

The corporation said that the route system would use the best of 1,500 out of 3,300 existing railroad passenger cars now operated by 22 different railroads.

David W. Kendall, chairman of the Board of Incorporators of the corporation said the 22 railroads now are losing more than $235 million annually and the initial objective will be to cut these losses by more than half. The routes outlined include the following: Chicago to Cincinnati by way of Indianapolis and Lafayette, Ind., one train a day in each direction.

Chicago-Milwaukee — Chicago to Seattle by way of Milwaukee, Minneapolis - St. Paul, Willmar, Minn., Fargo, N.D., Grand Forks, N.D., Minot, N.D., Williston, N.D., Glacier Park Sandpoint, Idaho, Spokane, Pasco, and Yakima.

Enemy Might Have Moved Closer

Senators Doubt Success of Laos Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three senators say the South Vietnamese operation in Laos apparently is not as successful as the Nixon administration claims.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said Sunday the operation may have brought more North Vietnamese forces closer to the South without providing much breathing space for continuing U.S. troop withdrawals.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said the current South Vietnamese withdrawal casts doubt on "the whole credibility of South Vietnamese forces and the reliability of predictions of our own leaders" as a result of their claiming success for the move.

Weekend Retreat

South Vietnamese troops were reported in weekend retreat from Laos.

"If they're coming back of their own volition, they're paying a price for it," Mansfield told reporters. "There seems to be no doubt that a withdrawal is in progress."

What may have happened is that they've brought more North Vietnamese into the con- flict, brought them down closer to South Vietnam through South- ern Laos, and haven't got that breathing spell we were told was anticipated," he said.

McGovern, who met recently with presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, said there is no apparent indication that "we fear that South Vietnam would be coming out very fast" from under attack after we left, or possibly be- fore.

He said he received a general indication from Kissinger that the whole U.S. involvement in South Vietnam was a mistake.

Aiken said the South Vietnamese are leaving Laos "rather faster than they'd planned to do, with the enemy in hot pursuit through South Vietnam."

He said the South Vietnamese army didn't "cover itself with glory exactly, but it (the Laos) McGovern, who met recently with presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, said there is no apparent indication that "we fear that South Vietnam would be coming out very fast" from under attack after we left, or possibly be- fore.

"I doubt if they're worrying quite so much as they were two months ago," he said.

And Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., said he doubted the withdrawal is being carried out as planned.

Aiken was interviewed on the Metromedia Radio News program "Profile" while McGovern appeared on the ABC television-radio program "Issues and Answers."

Mansfield, a Montana Democrat, said he didn't know if he would call the invasion a failure "but it appears that the withdrawal has been hastened. You can't arrive at a judgment until all the facts are in."

Use of Contaminated Fluids Causes Much Blood Infection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is considering emergency action against use of a contaminated hospital fluid after a warning failed to stem a wave of blood infections.

The agency, which has drawn the fire of consumer-advocate Ralph Nader, has decided tentatively to remove the contaminated intravenous, sugar solution from hospitals and nursing homes if it is certain other manufacturers can step in, an FDA official disclosed. The contaminated fluid was produced by Abbott Laboratories.

A final decision is expected soon.

Failure to take this step two weeks ago when the peril was discovered was "shockingly irresponsible," Nader said in a letter to FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards.

Epidemic Numbers

A "staggering number" of additional cases of blood infection, amounting to an epidemic, have been reported in the week since the FDA advised precautionary handling of the fluid, a government source said.

It was also learned the FDA over-rode a recommendation to ban the fluid from the Public Health Service after a government survey of eight PSH hospitals between October 1970 and March 1 disclosed 150 blood infections and nine deaths linked to the Abbott Laboratories' product.

Projected to other hospitals, the figures indicated thousands of infections.

As many as 52 per cent of plastic cap liners in the bottles were found contaminated with bacteria. Under certain normal handling procedures, the bacteria could enter the fluid and subsequently a patient's veins, causing blood infection.

The sugar solution is necessary for sick persons unable to drink or eat.

Vital Need

The FDA decided to allow continued use of the fluid, though with new handling recommendations, because of the vital need and because other manufacturers were believed incapable of filling the gap immediately.

A spokesman for Abbott said in Chicago shipments of the fluid have been stopped "except on an emergency basis." He termed the precautionary handling recommended by the FDA "the most responsible course of action to protect the health of patients requiring intravenous therapy."

Abbott has 45 per cent of the intravenous fluid market. Some 4,000 of the nation's 7,000 hospitals have equipment designed for Abbott fluids only, an FDA spokesman said.

Nader said the FDA advice last week to continue using the Abbott solution until a patient develops infection is a "form of malpractice . . . and a cowardly repudiation of the ethic of preventive medicine."

Jews Protest Against Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, militant leader of the Jewish Defense League, told his followers simply: "When the papers say tomorrow that 5,000 Jews were arrested, next week we'll have 5,000 more."

Shortly after his declaration Kahane became the first of some 689 protesters to be peacefully led away by Washington police Sunday for sitting in a busy intersection in the nation's capital.

Most of those arrested were released after forfeiting $10 collateral.

Some 2,500 persons demonstrated Sunday to protest Soviet treatment of Jews in Russia.

First, they rallied on the Ellipse, a few hundred yards from the White House. Speakers called on President Nixon to end all cultural and diplomatic talks with the Russians until all Jews who want to can leave the Soviet Union.

"We're calling on you President Nixon to make a change in U.S. foreign policy," said Kahane, who was among 15 speakers. "No freedom, no talks if there is freedom, then there will be talks," he said.

Then the demonstrators under close police scrutiny, marched six blocks to the Soviet Embassy, but got no closer than the 500 feet allowed under District of Columbia law.

Six police motor scooters barreled the street to the protesters and officials told them to turn down a side street. Instead, Kahane took a bullhorn and told his followers to sit down.

Fifteen minutes later, after several warnings that they would be arrested for obstructing a public highway, police waded in and began making arrests for disorderly conduct.

Kahane had told his followers to offer no resistance when a police officer grabbed them. All but one—who had to be dragged went peacefully.

Police first arrested the leaders of the group followed by older protesters. Next were the young men and women. Finally the teenagers.

A Hobo Hoedown Complete With Mulligan Stew

They arrived at Moose Hall from all over the Fox Valley to join in the square dance and to taste the Mulligan stew. As the delicious confection simmered gently on the back of the stove, Lyle Leatherman used his talents to keep the dancers moving. Sponsored by the Grand Square Dance Club, the party was the group's annual Hobo Hoedown. Below, Mrs. Walter Larsen ladles the thick stew into the "fine china" bowls of the hobo jungle. At right, Mrs. Raymond Kline and her partner swing to the sound of the fiddle and the caller's words.

As they do, the light behind them makes deep shadows reflecting the dancers every move. Chairmen of the event which got underway at 8:30 p.m. were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bauer and Mr. and Mrs. Larsen.

Well-Known Fox Valley dance caller, Lyle Leatherman, utters familiar words into the microphone—to which the dancers respond with enthusiasm. Below, the "hobo jungle" doesn't offer soft beds, only spots of earth beneath the stars. Frank Short joins a fellow companion who keeps warm with a blanket that's easy to come by.

Dancers Came from all over the Fox River Valley Saturday evening to take part in the party at Moose Hall. But their dress was not the usual white shirts and bow ties that are their signatures. Instead, as Charles Robertson, De Pere, did, they donned the robes of those who threw society aside to travel the open road.

Study, Concensus Slated By Voters' League Units

Because the first set of units allocated to area planning have been cancelled, units of the Appleton League of Women Voters will combine study and consensus when they meet this week.

Mrs. Robert Coffin, 159 River Drive, will be hostess and Mrs. Frank Koffend, co-hostess, which Unit I meets this evening at 8 p.m. Discussion leader will be Mrs. John Kurtyka.

Unit II will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Peter Thomas, 1315 S. Alicia Drive. Co-hostess will be Mrs. John Zeiss with Mrs. Robert Buchanan acting as discussion leader.

Wednesday morning at 9 a.m., Unit III will meet at the Presbyterian Church. Hostess will be Mrs. Kyle Ward Jr., with Mrs. Robert Rosenberg, discussion leader.

Discussion leader for Unit IV will be Mrs. Donald Long.

The group will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Leonard Weis, 120 N. Green Bay Road.

The annual meeting has been slated April 14 at Calder Center at the Institute of Paper Chemistry. Sherry will be served at 6:30 p.m. and a potluck dinner at 7 p.m. The business meeting will begin at 8:15 p.m.

The agenda for this meeting will include discussion and adoption of a local program and the budget. Officers will be elected. Each member has been asked to bring her potluck speciality and individual place setting. Reservations should be made either at the unit meetings this week or

What an Executor Does When There's a Death in Your Family

Inevitable as death and taxes might be, their adversity is doubled when they happen together. The blow is softened somewhat, though, and the grief less complicated when financial worries can be kept to a minimum through advance planning.

Here are some questions and answers about terms that seem to come up only when there is a death in the family.

Q. What is an executor?
A. An executor — or executrix, if female—is the person designated to take care of the affairs of someone who has died.

Q. What does an executor do?
A. An executor retains a lawyer to guide the deceased's will through its legal path. This process is called probate, or proving the will's validity. The document will be examined in surrogate, probate or orphan's court, depending upon the procedure of the state.

Assembles All Property
The executor also is responsible for assembling all property belonging to the estate, including life insurance benefits, household goods, securities, mortgages, real estate interests and cash. In the presence of a state tax representative, he must remove valuables left in a safe deposit box. He must collect money owed to the deceased; appraise, manage and protect business interests; and invest funds according to the terms of the will.

Also, the executor must pay all outstanding debts and all federal, state and local taxes. He is responsible, too, for distributing the bequests designated in the will. And he must file an accounting with the court.

Q. Who appoints the executor?
A. Generally speaking the executor is named by the maker of the will. When there is no will — the person has died "intestate"—the court will appoint an executor.

Q. Is there ever more than one executor?

A. Yes. Frequently a friend or member of the family is named as one executor, and the bank is named as co-executor. The choice should be made on the basis of competence and ability to handle money matters in order to avoid unnecessary and perhaps excessive expense of both time and money.

Q. Who at the bank will take on the job of executor?

Most full service banks have complete trust departments, and it is an officer in this department who would work closely with your family to execute the terms of your will.

Q. Is the executor paid for his services?

A. Yes, but his fee varies from state to state and generally because it is on a percentage basis, it depends on the size of the estate.

Q. What difference does it make if there is no will?

A. You lose the privilege of naming your executor, and you deprive your survivors of any legal voice in how your estate — no matter what its size—is divided, and to whom it should go. In some states, for example, if a husband dies and the law says his widow will receive one-third of her husband's estate and the other two-thirds will go to their offspring. The court-appointed executor will carry out the law.

Guardian Privilege Lost

You also lose the privilege — and deprive your survivors of it as well — of naming a guardian for minor children. If a child is a minor, a guardian will have to be appointed by the court and the widow will have to file accountings to the court periodically on the status of the child's money.

Q. Should both husband and wife have wills?

A. Yes, for several reasons. Should the wife die before her husband, a will provides the means for distribution of her goods and valuables in the way she wants.

Also, should the husband and wife die either at the same time or within a short time of each other, their holdings will be distributed as they wish. If, in the husband's will everything is left to a wife, who dies shortly after him leaving no will of her own, the distribution of the estate will be carried out by the court according to state law.

Anniversary Social

KIMBERLY — A 25th anniversary social is planned by the Kimberly Recreation Association at the Darby Club March 27, to include a program, dancing and refreshments.

Tickets for the affair must be purchased by Tuesday and are available from directors and various business establishments at a cost of $1.75 per person. The social will be limited to members of the Association.

Alimony a Question

Most women believe that a divorcee should not receive alimony if she is able to earn a living. This fact emerges from the 1970 Virginia Slims American Women's Opinion Poll conducted by Louis Harris and Associates. The recent survey shows that 62 per cent of American women oppose alimony for the divorcee who can support herself. Among those opposing alimony are more than half (56 per cent) of the divorced and separated women in the U.S.A.).

Humor, Whimsy Live in Island Artist's Paintings

By VIVIAN BROWN
NANTUCKET (AP) — Trick dogs, clowns, cats, Victorian sofas, babies and little girls in pantaloons from the easel of Worcester-born artist Polly Buchong, have proved successful here in the last three years.

And Polly has spent the winter getting ready for the tourist season with more of the same. The usual artist offerings—seascapes, whales, beach flowers, and marine art—had a lean season last year but Polly's show was virtually a sell-out.

Her formula? Make them smile!

"You know, in these times, people want to be amused. There is enough trouble in the world without being dreary in art . . .," she explained.

But there is more to it than that. Lots of the whims that show up in her art are born of nostalgic recollections of stories implanted in childhood by her father, an artist and photographer. His boyhood included being a champion bronco rider and bicycle rider, and building toy steam engines, a windmill to operate his mother's butter churn and other contraptions to help cut down his farm chores. He also conducted magic shows.

These ideas thread their way through Polly's little paintings. There are the tin lizzies, bicycles, horses and carriages. A dog may be standing on his hind legs on a sofa while his mistress sits primly. Or a clown may be holding a handful of balloons as he stands on a lawn. The paintings are fun and a carriage of babies can be hilarious.

Polly feared the baby carriage might become a cause celebre last season when two people claimed it at her show.

"I had to agree to paint another one to keep them from fighting over it. I don't like to do that, but . . ."

The baby carriages are the "fantastical kind" with pin-wheel style wheels and maybe a bird or bee on the hood.

Fashion Designers Join Ecologists for Environmental Benefit

NEW YORK — "Create a Beautiful New York with the Environmental Habit" was the theme last Wednesday of a fashion show luncheon in honor of the Mayor's Council on the Environment at the Tavern on the Green in Central Park. Mrs. John V. Lindsay and Mrs. Andrew Heiskell were co-chairmen of the event which drew an audience of more than 200 members of local government, society and business. Fall '71 Enecon polyester doubleknits from Collins and Aikman were used by 15 of this country's leading designers to create special garments for socially prominent models. For Mrs. Lindsay, commentator Anne Bancroft and Mayor's Council Director, Michael Belknap.

Theme of the show was carried through with fashion such as "street cleaner's" overalls designed for Mrs. Thomas Hoving by Geoffrey Beene and Tammy Grimes' all white (for clean air only) evening dress by Stavropolis.

Carol Horn for Benson & Partners designed a hot pants outfit with blue, red and yellow pinwheel stripes for Mayor Lindsay's daughter, Mrs. Richard L. Schaffer, and Mr. and Mrs. John Weitz modeled their famous shirt suits in red and yellow C & A doubleknits.

Other designers were: Chester Weinberg for Mrs.

Elinor Simmons for Malcolm Starr designed for Mrs. Jerome Kretschmer; Donald Brooks Boutique for Mrs. David Susskind; Carol Horn for Miss Susan Samuels; Bill Blass Ltd. for Mrs. Alan Jay Lerner; Duncan Reed by Allen Case for Fred Kent; John Weitz for Steven L. Isenberg and Stan Herman for Mr. Mort for Miss Pamela Howard.

Designers chose bright colors and clean patterns for their environmental fashions, which included several hot pants suits, evening dresses, sportswear and at-home wear. Inspirational and ecological props for the far-from-ordinary fashion show included a workman's broom, an old-fashioned scrub board, roller skates and a bicycle built for two.

In keeping with the theme of the event, the room was decorated in a replica of a spring garden by Nelson Fertiz of The Greenery.

The Mayor's Council, a privately funded independent organization, serves New York by creating, developing and promoting programs for a cleaner and more liveable city. Mayor Lindsay said recently: "The quality of life in the city can be greatly improved when the public and private sectors unite to achieve this goal. This is the purpose of the Mayor's Council on the Environment."

Mr. and Mrs. John Weitz model ecological adaptations of his famous shirt suits in red and yellow Enecon polyester doubleknits at Collins and Aikman's New York fashion show luncheon for the Mayor's Council on the Environment. Mrs. Weitz is actress Susan Kohner. At right, Mrs. John V. Lindsay in a plaid pantsuit discusses the show with George A. Tunick and actress Anne Bancroft.

Striped Knit Hot Pants created by Carol Horn for Benson and Partners are worn by Mayor Lindsay's daughter, Mrs. Richard A. Schaffer.

Ladies Play Major Role In Reducing Income Tax

April Begins Area Stitchery Workshop

"Don't sell that used coat yet! It may be worth more to you if you simply give it away."

Apparel, sometimes unusable to the taxpayer because of weight change or other reasons, are tax deductible at the fair market value when donated to a bonafide IRS-approved charitable organization, says Henry W. Bloch, president of H & R Bloch, Inc.

Bloch says that taxpayers lose substantial amounts of money each year by not donating unwanted articles of clothing and other usable items to charity. Many of those who do donate these items, he reports, forget to claim a deduction when filing income tax returns, thereby forfeiting potential sizeable tax savings.

For example, a used coat with a fair market value of $300 donated to a bonafide charitable organization is as important a deduction as a cash contribution for the same amount. The fair market value is simply listed on the "other than cash" donation line under "Contributions" on Schedule A. It should be pointed out, however, that a receipt from the charitable organization must be obtained to substantiate the donation.

Unwanted books, toys, furniture, incomplete sets of dishes and almost any other type of merchandise in usable or, for some organizations, repairable condition can be donated and deducted from taxes. "Be sure to check your favorite charity's or church's thrift shop, however, to find out what kinds of merchandise they will accept. Sometimes it is advantageous to contribute to more than one," he advises.

"This is only one of many ways that a woman can reduce taxes on her own return or on a joint return." The tax expert lists the following additional and seldom-used deductibles: Amounts paid in excess of the fair market value for merchandise, goods, services, etc., sold by charitable organization, e.g. tickets to a theater benefit, clothing, etc.: The cost of using the family car for charitable work at six cents a mile or actual cost of gas and oil; The cost and upkeep of uniforms worn while performing charitable services. Den Mother's, Civil Defense and Red Cross uniforms are examples of these. Out-of-pocket expenses such as postage, stationery, phone calls, donated foods, and also meals and lodging away from

A creative stitchery workshop for Appleton area girls and boys between the ages of 9 and 14 will be sponsored by the University Extension, Outagamie County.

Classes will meet from 3:30 to 5 p.m., Wednesdays beginning April 7 and extend for a period of three weeks in meeting room 2 of the court house annex. Instructor for the class will be Miss Carol Evans, 4-H home economist.

Students will be taught the basic stitches and how to design and make a simple wall hanging from their own materials.

Registration deadline is March 31. There is no charge for the workshop.

home while performing services to a recognized charity away from home.

"Most wives are very much involved with 90 per cent of the deductible items on federal tax returns," Bloch states. "Items such as medical, dental and drug expenses, interest on installment payments, and many other daily living expenses can, if properly reported on income tax returns, cut the family tax bill."

"It is important to keep accurate records and save all receipts to substantiate legitimate deductions."

Colonial Williamsburg To be Site of Wedding

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — This colonial capital, restored to its 18th century appearance mostly through funds provided by the Rockefeller family, is the setting today for the marriage of one of the family.

Winthrop Paul Rockefeller 22, of Winrock, Ark., and Deborah Cluett Sage of New York, 20, planned to take their vows in an afternoon ceremony in historic Bruton Parish Church.

Expected to attend were four of the Rockefeller brothers, including the bridegroom's father, former Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas, who heads the board of Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

The list of 200 invited guests for the private ceremony also included Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, John D. Rockefeller III and Laurence Rockefeller.

Also expected was young Rockefeller's mother, Mrs. Barbara "Bobo" Sears Rockefeller, the daughter of a coal miner. She was the first wife of the former Arkansas chief executive. They were divorced in 1954.

Chosen to perform the ceremony were Dr. Cotesworth P. Lewis, rector of the church and the Rt. Rev. Nelson M. Burroughs of Chatham, Maine, retired Episcopal Bishop of Ohio and a relative of the bride's family.

Many of the guests were flown in prior to the wedding and stayed at various inns. A prewedding ball was held Sunday night at the Williamsburg Inn.

The guests were provided with a manservant or a maid if requested for their stay, which included a reception and a luncheon at the Williamsburg Conference Center after the wedding.

The young couple met last year while both were students at Oxford University in England.

Miss Sage is the daughter of Louis Davidson Sage of New Canaan, Conn., a public relations executive, and Mrs. Nicholas Chryssicopoulos of Athens, Greece.

Born in New York, she attended Chapin School there and later went to Lady Eden's and Queens Gate schools in England. She made her debut in 1968 in London.

Miss Sage recently worked with a New York public relations firm as a speech-writer.

THE ACES

ON BRIDGE
IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

In the bridge player's paradise, there is no such thing as a losing finesse. Here, all finesses are favorable and no contracts go down. All this as a reward for not mistreating the finesse while playing bridge in this world.

If you want to improve your chances of reaching the "bridge paradise," study carefully today's instructional hand, used by Mrs. Mary McNally, talented bridge teacher of Tulsa, Okla.

Opening lead: Nine of hearts.

The bidding was standard. North's 12 points entitled him to two bids. East's distribution and strength justified his entry into the bidding, and South's fine suit made his bidding reasonable.

West led the nine of hearts, dummy followed small and East signalled with the 10. East's play was proper, since he knew the nine was West's highest heart and he (East) could not safely continue hearts if he won the ace.

The declarer who likes to take every finesse in sight loses the contract by playing as follows:

He wins the heart king, cashes the club king and then finesses in diamonds. East wins the king, cashes two hearts and exits with a club. The defense now waits patiently for declarer to take his remaining finesse in spades. Down one.

The declarer headed for paradise makes the hand by handling his finesses carefully. He wins the heart king and cashes the spade ace and the club king. Next he leads a diamond to the ace, cashes the club ace and discards a heart. A spade is led and the defense is limited to three tricks — one spade, one heart and one diamond.

Our successful declarer refused to finesse in both spades and diamonds. His plan pro-

The Ailing House Mice Like To Nibble Warfarin

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: The mice in our cottage really go for the wallboard used on our ceilings. You can hear them chewing loudly, especially at night. They have already chewed their way through in a couple of places. Can you help us? — Milwaukee.

A: Grain poisoned with warfarin, like "D-Con," works fine. Put a few of these units up there on top of the ceiling board and see what happens. Traps baited with peanut butter also account for many a scalp.

Q: At one time you published a recipe for making a paint remover with lye. I can't remember the other ingredients. Would you please print this again? — Milwaukee.

A: Dissolve three tablespoons of lye in a quart of hot starch solution (same starch solution used for starching clothes). Apply with a cotton swab, not a bristle brush. Fiber brush okay. As soon as you see the paint softening, rinse off thoroughly. Lye is so very caustic you should always wear rubber gloves. Old clothes also a good idea. I'm not a lye booster myself; can cause too much trouble if it gets where it's not wanted and isn't noticed.

Q: Can a blue Formica counter be stained navy? Or is color impossible to change? — Columbus.

A: Outside of enameling, I know of no way to change Formica color. And this is tough, because the glossy surface must be sanded dull. Otherwise the enamel won't stick.

Your Problems

Busybodies Deprived of Emotional Show

By ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband passed away after a long illness. He suffered a great deal. Since he was a private person who disliked public displays of emotion, I was determined to control myself at the funeral. With difficulty I managed to keep my head up and my eyes dry. Perhaps I had done so much weeping in my pillow during his illness there were no tears left when he died.

Dozens of callers gathered at my home after the funeral and I accidentally overheard two women talking in the kitchen. They were saying how strange it was that I didn't seem at all shaken by my husband's death. One woman said, "This is the first time I've ever seen a widow who didn't go to pieces." Did I do my husband an injustice by concealing my emotions? Would it have been better to have displayed my broken heart to the world? The women in the kitchen were not trying to hurt my feelings. They had no idea I was behind the door listening to every word. Tell me please.

—A Single Rose

Dear Rose: Your husband would have been proud of you. But you certainly disappointed the town busybodies by depriving them of the show they had come to see. They will not forgive you easily. My condolences to you and heartiest congratulations for your non-performance.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Occasionally you print material by others. I hope you do so again. Here's a poem by Veda Panikvar of Chisolm, Minn. It's one of my favorites. —L.A. of Wash., D.C.

Saints And Sinners
"When some fellow yields to temptation
And breaks a conventional law.

We look for no good in his makeup.
But, Lord, how we look for the flaw.

No one asks, "Who did the tempting?"
Nor allows for the battles he's fought.

His name becomes food for the jackals
The saints who have never been caught.

I'm a sinner, O Lord and I know it.
I am weak, and I blunder and fail.

I am tossed on life's stormy ocean
Like a ship that is caught in a gale.

I am willing to trust in thy mercy,
To keep the commandments I have made.

But deliver me, Lord, from the judgment
Of the saints who have never been caught."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband hired a new assistant several weeks ago. Last week the man's family moved here. His wife is a pleasant person, attractive and sweet, but she makes me uncomfortable because she laughs all the time — at nothing. At the end of every sentence she gives out this little "ha ha ha ha." I had an aunt who did the same thing. We called her "The Hyena." Why do certain people have such an odd sense of humor? —New Mexico.

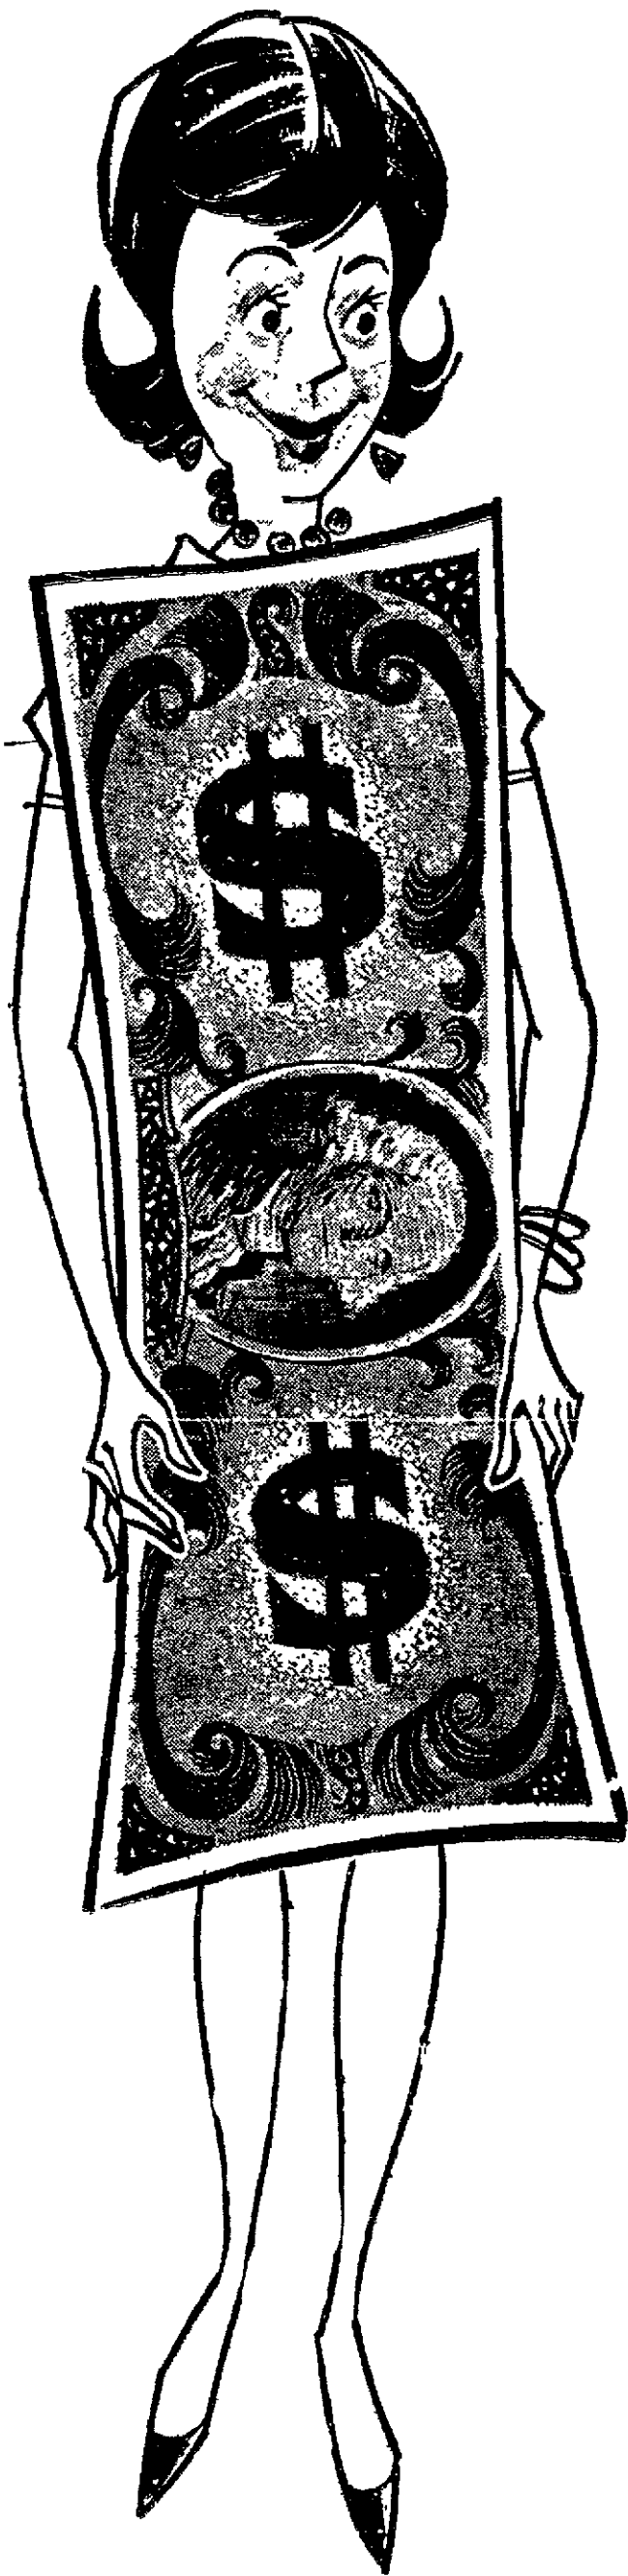

Dear A.M.: This type of laughter has nothing to do with humor. It is a mechanism for releasing tension. Let's hope that when the woman becomes more com-

How Good Must Facilities be for Adequate Education?

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Can a youngster get an adequate education in an old school—even if it's crowded, noisy and lacking a full-fledged gymnasium?

Is it fair that one youngster can attend a large, modern school with a complete gym, with baskets, a library and a multi-purpose room while another is forced to attend a school which comes all too close to resembling the little red schoolhouse of years ago?

These are two important questions which are embroiling parents, educators, technicians and politicians in a controversy surrounding the demand for alteration of the current quality of the so-called central city schools—Jackson, Columbus, and Washington elementary schools.

The three elementary schools in the Town of Grand Chute—Woodlawn, Twin Willows and Badger—also have been thrown into the pot for a proposed renovation or replacement study to be made by City Planner Jack Hetu. Final action on the study has been delayed.

The central city school issue isn't new in Appleton. It all started with a group of Jackson parents who in 1965 began complaining about the inadequacies of Jackson's building but didn't receive satisfaction from administrators, the board or the state. Now, they've turned to local politicians and the fiscal control board, the controller of the school's purse strings.

Educationally adequate is a vague term—even when trying to attach it to a building. No one thinks the three central city schools are impressive educationally but most apparently aren't convinced that the schools are a serious deterrent to the youngsters' trying to get an education there.

Administrators have said that all three schools are educationally adequate, but they don't deny that there are deficiencies in the buildings. But they said that old buildings are bound to have these, adding that they are working to equalize facilities as much as possible.

Teachers and administrators agreed that definitely teachers and probably equipment and supplies play a more vital role in providing a youngster with an adequate education. "The major question is the caliber of the teaching going on," said Orlyn Zieman, district administrator.

Mrs. Arch Hoffman, a leader of Jackson parents calling for the closing of Jackson, was less convinced of the adequacy, at least of Jackson. She said the educational opportunities at the schools were comparatively low and added that "adequate is a very minimal word."

It should be noted that

Columbus and Jackson have been criticized most. Washington, opened two years ago after having been closed a short time, was remodeled extensively to accommodate a new educational concept. It also has larger rooms and hallways, a gymnasium and a less serious noise problem.

In Central City

Washington really came into the picture only a few weeks ago when the politicians took up the issue. However, the school is old, built in 1935 and it is located in the central city area where some have said educational improvements have been few and far between lately.

Looking at Jackson and Columbus, there are a range of views as broad as the groups involved in the controversy. There are those who would have closed Jackson last January and sent pupils to nearby schools, while the 1970 five-year capital improvements plan of the board of education calls for keeping the two schools open at least until September, 1975.

School Study Still Without Right Planner

Hetu, COG, Mayor Involved in District Renovation Question

A proposed study of renovating or consolidating two groups of Appleton district public schools has taken two more bounces in its search for the right agency to do the study.

Last Wednesday, a proposal to have the Appleton planning director do the job was sent back to the Plans Commission for further consideration. At the same time, the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) tabled Mayor George Buckley's request to have COG perform the study.

Friday, Buckley received a letter from COG Executive Director Eugene Franchett asking the mayor to tell why the matter is a regional, rather than a city, problem.

Today, the mayor said he has sent the COG letter to Planning Director Jack Hetu to answer, placing Hetu in the position of explaining to COG why the regional agency should do a job Hetu had originally been asked to take on.

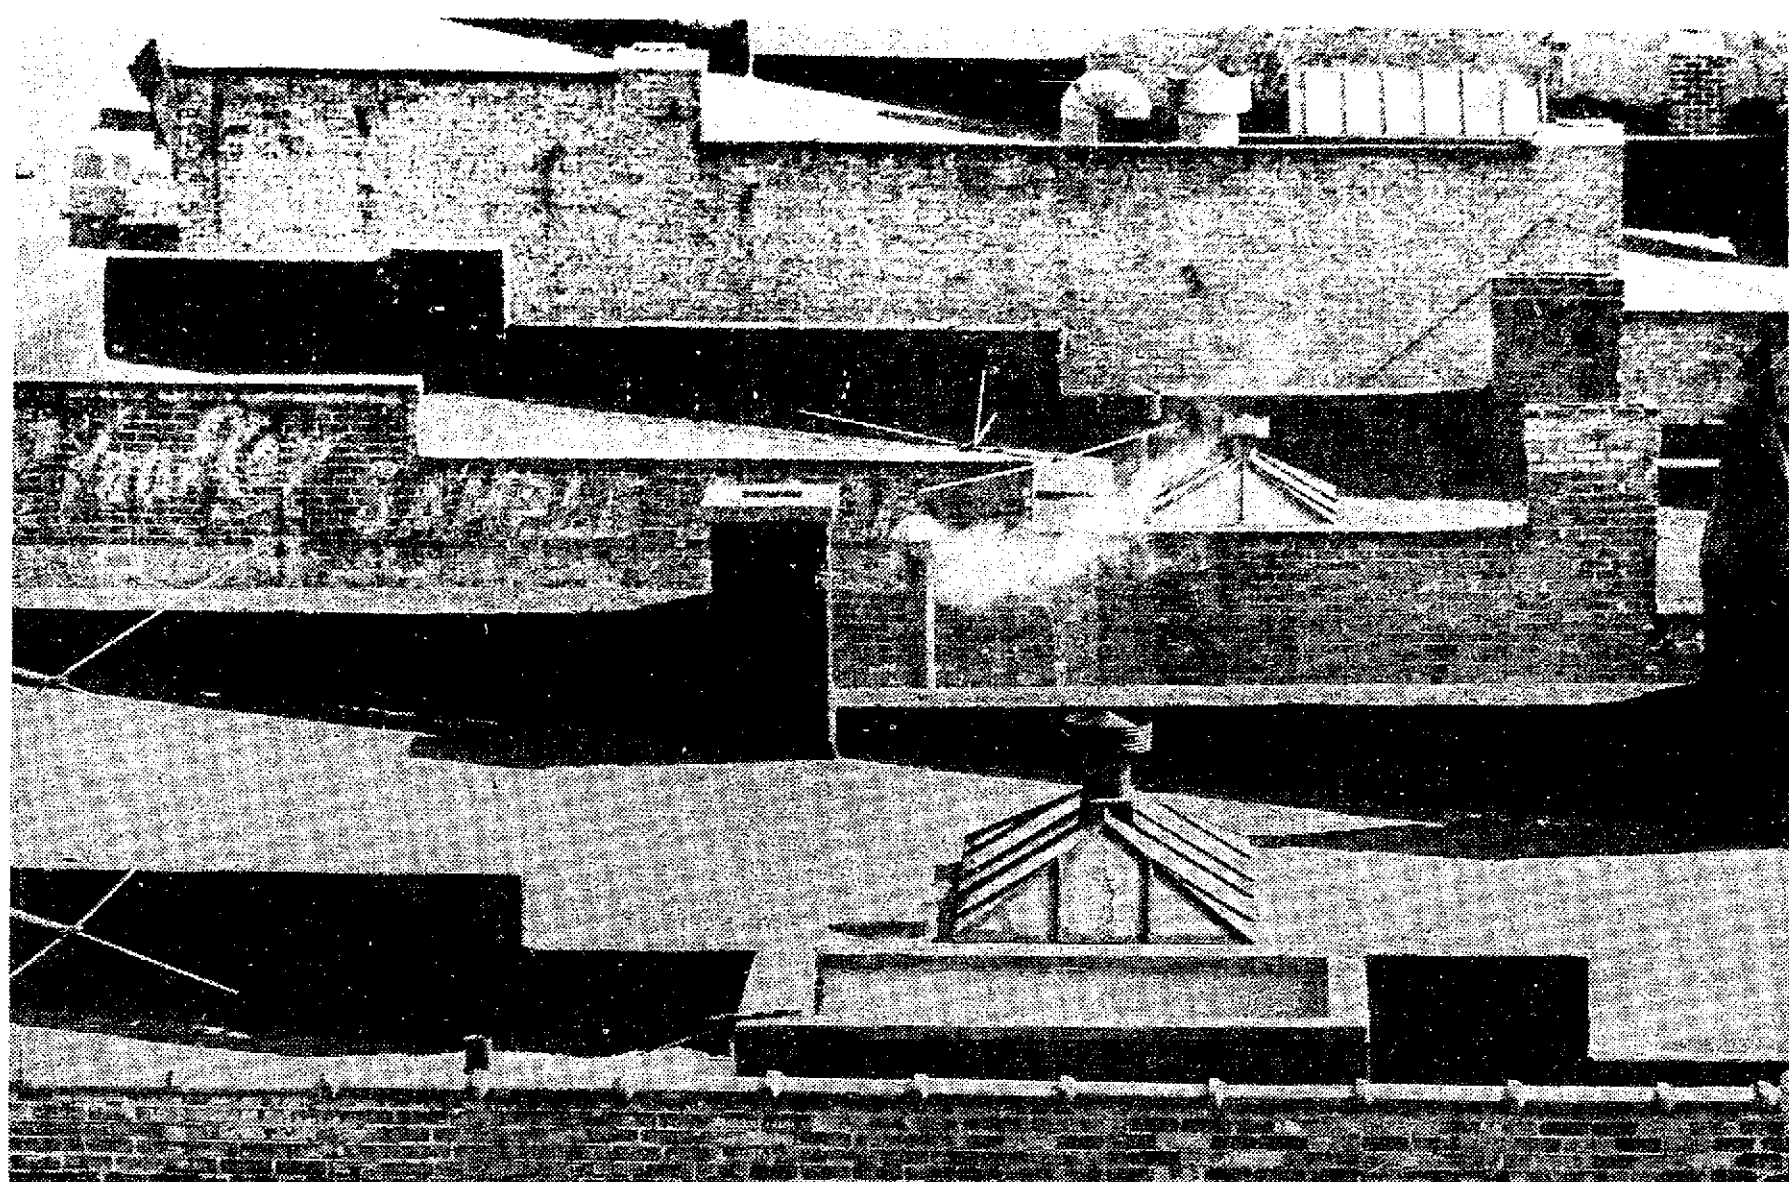

Both the School Advisory Committee of the City Council and the city's Plans Commission had recommended Hetu for the job.

He was to study the Columbus, Jackson and Washington schools in the central part of the city and the Badger, Twin Willows and Woodlawn Schools in the Town of Grand Chute, and advise whether renovation or replacement with central schools for the two areas was preferable.

Buckley intervened, however, saying that since the Grand Chute schools are included, COG should do the study. He remained convinced of that today, saying that he is unable to justify a city-financed department studying Grand Chute schools.

"I see no reason whatsoever why the Appleton Planning Department, which is supported exclusively by Appleton taxpayers, should get into something like this," said the mayor.

He added that if Hetu wants to study only the inner-city schools, he could, but if COG is going to do part of the study the regional agency might as well do it all.

Controversy Arises After Letter to Lucey

A letter from Gov. Patrick Lucey to a rural Hortonville farmer has sparked a controversy involving the offices of governor, attorney general and Outagamie County sheriff.

It apparently all started when Henry J. Hofacker, route 1, Hortonville, who was an unsuccessful Republican candidate for Outagamie County sheriff last fall and who ran last in a field of 12 candidates for county executive this month, wrote a letter Jan. 13 to Lucey in which he reportedly was critical of the "quality of justice being dispensed in Outagamie County."

Hofacker has gained somewhat of a reputation over the years for openly criticizing judges, policemen and other officials connected with law enforcement.

Lucey, in a letter of reply to Hofacker, stated, in part, "Unfortunately, since my budget message has been delayed and I must devote the majority of my time to its formulation, I will not have time to meet with you in the near future.

"However, I have referred your letter to the attorney general's office. They will investigate the quality of justice being dispensed in Outagamie County."

Hofacker sent Lucey's reply to the Seymour Press which published it, along with Hofacker's request for publication, on Feb. 18.

The newspaper article came to the attention of Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren, who wrote Lucey a letter.

He told Lucey that his office had never received a copy of Hofacker's letter as the governor had stated. And, Warren added, "... we have never had any direction from you to investigate the quality of justice dispensed in Outagamie County."

Warren continued: "It is indeed unfortunate when a letter made public indicates that you have charged the Department of Justice with the responsibility of investigating the quality of justice in a given county when no such request or direction has ever been made to this office. I first became aware of this whole matter when I received a clipping of the letter that was reproduced in the Seymour Press."

"Failure to forward Mr. Hofacker's letter after you had told him you had done so may be attributable to inexperienced staff work. However, reproduction of a letter in which you publicly state that I have been charged with the responsibility of conducting an investigation into the quality of justice in Outagamie County, when such a request was never made nor apparently contemplated, casts an unfortunate cloud over all law enforcement officials and the courts of Outagamie County.

"I am sure that the people of that county would be concerned at the necessity of such an investigation, which your letter seems to imply."

Warren concluded, "Obviously, such investigations should only be contemplated when there is reasonable basis to believe that some public officials or public or private bodies are engaged in inappropriate behavior."

Warren sent copies of the letter to Lucey to the Seymour Press, all judges in the county, Dist. Atty. James R. Long and Sheriff Calvin Spice.

Spice, in a letter to Lucey late last week, stated he felt it was "extremely unfortunate that you felt it was necessary to give such an answer without first checking the character of the individual who had written this letter."

Spice noted that Hofacker had lost a $40,000 civil suit brought against him by a former sheriff who charged him with defamation of character and he noted that Hofacker recently served a 30-day jail term for failure to pay a fine for a traffic violation. Hofacker chose the jail term rather than pay the fine.

"As far as solving any problems in Outagamie County," Spice wrote Lucey, "your office or the attorney general's office are most welcome to investigate the law enforcement operation here at any time."

"At a time when the image of law enforcement is at an all-time low, any implication justice is not being served properly in Outagamie County, by the governor of our fine state, can only serve to lower this image."

Spice closed his letter calling for a statement from Lucey's office to the press stating that "... justice is being properly served in Outagamie County."

Xavier Enrollment Down 150 Next Fall

An enrollment between 375 and 600, constituting a decrease since the public junior high of about 150 students, is expected by Xavier High School for the 1971-72 school year.

Most of the decrease from this year's enrollment of 754, however, is caused by a large graduating class (213) and a smaller incoming freshman class (113), the Rev. Emmet Weber, superintendent, said.

The decrease in students also has made it necessary to cut back in staff. No courses will be dropped but at least one will be offered in alternate years.

According to Weber, the contracts of five full-time teachers and a part-time teacher have not been renewed. Two full-time teachers have been hired on a part-time basis for September.

Religious instructors Five brothers (two less than this year) and 13 sisters, (also a drop of two) will return.

The school will have an equivalent of nine full-time lay teachers, 18 religious and three priests.

Although the decrease in students is big, it does not come as a surprise. The actual figure comes very close to that projected last October.

Because of that projection, Xavier officials and board members feel the recent tuition increase may not be a great factor in the decrease.

Many Factors "It is a combination of factors," Weber feels. He cited the opening of Appleton High School-East as one of the reasons for the earlier decrease.

"It was a natural progression for people in the south side of town to send their children to the new McKinley Elementary School, then to Madison Junior High and, without breaking the continuity, to East High," he said.

The board had admitted at a meeting some time ago that the friendships developed in the elementary and junior high grades play an important part in the decision of which high school to attend.

Another factor mentioned is the fact that some of the elementary schools have dropped the final grade or grades, forcing the children to attend public school.

Hard to Get Back "It's difficult to get them back into the Catholic system once they have left, especially since the public junior high schools take them through ninth grade and they would have to enter Xavier as sophomores," explained Sister Catherine Marie, Xavier girls' principal.

The expected 1971 enrollment is close to that of 1960, the second year of operation.

Xavier opened in 1959 with 449 students. It reached its peak enrollment — 1,333 — in 1966.

At that time a second Catholic high school was contemplated by officials of the then seven parishes in the city.

That idea was abandoned shortly after word when the enrollment began to decrease rapidly, dropping from the peak of 1,333 to 754 in five years.

UW Head To Speak at C of C Dinner

Dr. John C. Weaver, president of the University of Wisconsin will be the featured speaker at the 50th annual meeting of the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce. The dinner meeting will be April 14 at the Conway Motor Inn.

Weaver recently returned to his home state to assume the presidency of the University. At the time of his appointment he was president of the University of Missouri, a position he had held since 1966.

Prior to the Missouri post Weaver had been vice president for research and dean of the graduate school at the State University of Iowa. He also has served as vice president of academic affairs and dean of the faculty at the Ohio State University.

Weaver has been a professor at the University of Minnesota, Harvard University and the University of London, England. His academic background is in geography.

Meeting activities are scheduled for 6 p.m., social hour will be at 7 p.m. Included on the evening meeting's program will be the introduction of the 1971 Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce president, Franklin Nebs, and the election of five new members to the Chamber's board of directors.

FAA Takes Over Tower on May 3

Final approval on Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) take over of the air traffic control tower at the Outagamie County Airport has been received by the county.

The FAA will assume operational control on May 3 when the county will turn over title of the tower to the FAA. Title will be given back to the county when and if a permanent tower is built at the airport.

The county purchased the tower for $25,000 last summer and has been operating it at county expense. The three traffic controllers now at the tower will be augmented by three additional controllers.

Approval of purchase of a tractor and gang mowers for use at the airport was given this morning by the county board's finance committee after an inter-committee hassle over who is supposed to handle bidding and purchasing for the county.

Purchases OK'd Purchase authorization was given for a John Deere tractor from the Brooks Equipment Co., De Pere, for $3,547 and for five Mott flail mowers from Gries bach Equipment Inc., Appleton, for $4,795. Both were low bidders.

Members of the finance committee expressed displeasure because the airport committee had opened the tractor bids several weeks ago without first going to the finance committee.

Supv. Eugene Kloes, a member of the finance unit, said he understood board rules call for the finance committee to take and open bids. "Was the administrator aware that bids were being opened?" he asked.

Supv. Edward Spierings, a member of the airport committee, said he was sure that he was.

Review Bids

Airport Manager Charles Olson reported that the bids were opened at the same time the finance committee was meeting but it had been decided to review the bids before presenting them.

Finance Committee member Marvin Babbitt also agreed it was the finance committee's job to handle bidding but suggested it was foolish to try to pick a fight.

Legislature Is 'Closer Than Ever' to Passing Parochial

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A campaigner for state aid to private schooling says he thinks the Wisconsin legislature is closer than ever to adopting subsidies for families with children attending parochial schools.

But Sen. Raymond F. Heinen, a Marshfield Republican, said he is less certain which of two routes will be taken in efforts to get a court ruling favorable to the private schools' wishes.

Heinen has submitted a bill which requests a state payment of up to $135 to the parents of any student in a private school. It is estimated his bill would cost the state $34 million in the 1971-73 biennium.

Court Ruling The bill also asks for a Wisconsin Supreme Court ruling to determine the constitutionality of state aid to parochial education.

Sen. Walter Hollander, R-Rosendale, is approaching the court aspect from a different angle. Hollander is co-chairman of the Joint Finance Committee, to which Heinen's plan was submitted last week.

Hollander said he doubts legislators will be eager to adopt Heinen's $34 million program. He has proposed instead that proponents of parochial assistance enact a token subsidy of 10 cents a family on which to base a court review.

Marquette University The token-subsidy approach was taken for Marquette University when it sought, and obtained, state aid for its medical school.

The school was incorporated and accepted state-appointed trustees to help it bypass prohibitions against state assistance to religious schools.

Heinen said lawyers "aren't agreed on the best way" to get a legal ruling for parochial elementary and high schools—through his direct appeal or through Hollander's token subsidy.

In either case, he said, the legislature seems ready to adopt some sort of assistance to slow the closings of private schools which are running out of funds and which contend they can raise tuition no further.

Wisconsin has about 212,000 students attending private schools, about 80 per cent of them Roman Catholic.

Heinen, a Catholic, sponsored a 1969 bill under which cigarette taxes would provide funds for state aid. The Senate approved it 26-6, but the Assembly let it die.

He predicted Saturday that his latest bill will similarly win Senate endorsement, although not with as healthy a victory margin. Opposition to the program is better organized this year, he remarked.

A factor seemingly working more in favor of Hollander's plan than for Heinen's is a warning from Gov. Patrick J. Lucey about legislative proposals which spend money for which there is no revenue.

Lucey has said he might have to veto a private-school assistance bill if legislators couldn't figure a way to finance it.

Heinen said the cigarette tax remains a possible revenue source.

Other tax sources, he said, are an inheritance tax increase or an increase in certain income tax brackets.

He didn't say which brackets should be considered.

Hollander said he doesn't think he can get his committee to recommend a bill containing an appropriation the size of the one outlined in Heinen's measure.

"If it were a token amount," Hollander said, "I would favor moving the bill right along."

Neenah Rockets Welcomed Back Home by 4,000 Fans

NEENAH — Some 4,000 wild-ly cheering fans, many waving signs and many decked out in red, turned out Sunday to give their favorite team and coaches an "enthusiastic welcome home."

The red carpet reception began with a police escort to Fox Point Shopping Center where the crowds and two fire engines waited. The procession then went through town and then out to Shattuck High School, where the gym practically shook with the excitement of the fans.

Yelling and clapping to chants like, "Hey, hey, Coach Einerson, open the door, we want the Rockets out on the floor," and later, "Hey, hey, Coach Einerson, we think you're great, you put the Rockets third in the state," the fans, of all ages, and the people all sprang up at showed the great community support.

Standing Ovation
The Rockets received a cheering and standing ovation as they entered the gym floor, and it was many minutes later before the rooters swelled down to hear the speakers, only to jump up in applause and cheers at practically everything that was said.

The 25-1 record, the "best in the school's history" was brought out by Alvin Long, high school principal, and Mayor Roman Hauser said he felt the Rockets were the "number one" team.

Last year's welcome for the Rockets was marked by tears, but there were none Sunday. Everyone seemed happy, the fans were, the team members were smiling and so were the coaches. And as Frank Hochholzer later said, "All that glitters is not gold."

Example of Life
Hochholzer, a member of the board of education who rarely misses a game, in town and out, told the fans that the Rockets have "given you an example of life. You can be up, you can be down."

He told the Class of 1971 to take with them the example of the Rockets. "You won't always win, but you can always come back."

It was Emerson the crowd was waiting to hear, and when he did get up to speak, the son of Coach Einerson, the cheering, the clapping, the cheering state," the fans, of all ages, and the people all sprang up at showed the great community support.

He was also in a light mood. He said he had a message for the parents of the players from the coaches. The coaches have had the players for the last five days, and "we'd like to give them back to you now."

"Coaches are like mother hens, hang up your clothes, clean up," Einerson said. "That's why I want to give them back to you."

Seriously, he said, "we do keep pretty close tabs on them, and you can be quite proud of the 25-1, but the way but they conducted themselves." "They're fantastic young men, I'm very proud of them."

Einerson also commended the student backing.

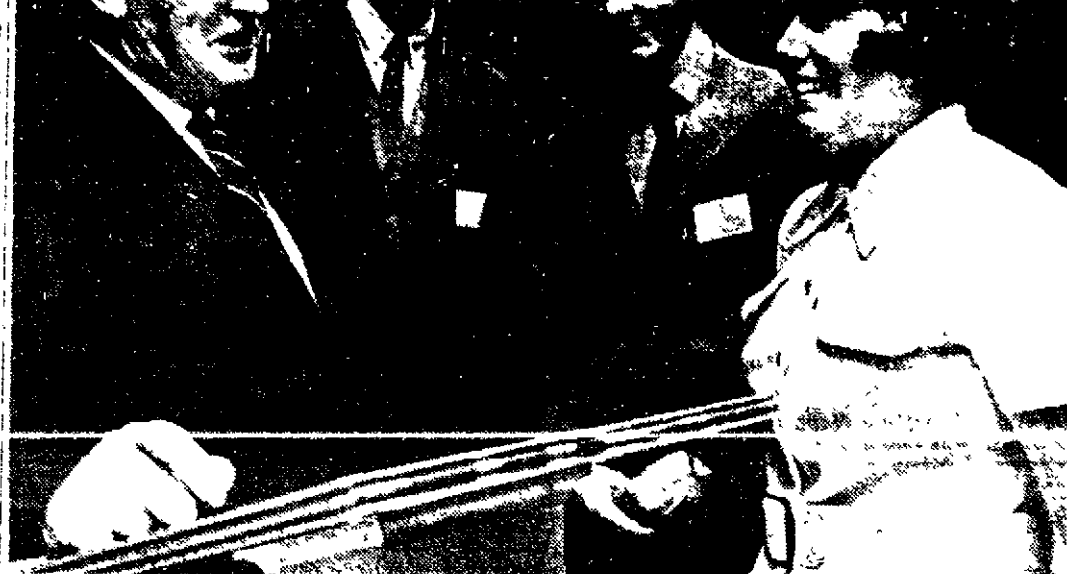

He referred to last Wednesday's pep assembly when he had criticized some students for the way they had acted.

"But though I can criticize, I can praise. We needed you Saturday, we really needed you. And you were there," Einerson said.

"And I want you to know the team and staff appreciated the support."

As for the third place ranking, Einerson said that "we're disappointed, we went down to win, we wanted to win." But as he has said before, he repeated, "let's not let two points mar what has been so tremendous for these young men."

And then came the introduction of the team, itself, handled in the way it has been before. No name of any of the players was heard as they were introduced, because the cheering was so loud.

Joint Panel Backs Economy Reins, Javits Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., has indicated that a report by the Joint Economic Committee of Congress to be issued shortly will urge a form of wage-price controls. Javits said in a television interview Sunday that he did not believe that full wage and price controls are necessary to check inflation and stabilize the economy. "But I would advocate a wage and price board which would have the power to have a modifying effect upon wage and price increases of a substantial character," he said.

Area Legislators Don't Favor Draft Challenge

MADISON — The state senate voted heavily in favor of a bill challenging the government's right to draft the state's young men to fight in an undeclared war — like Vietnam. But all three local state legislators are against the measure.

The senate vote last Thursday was 24-4. Twelve Republicans voted with Democrats, and Senate Democratic leader Fred Risser, D-Madison, predicted passage in the assembly. One of the four Republican senators voting "no" was Jack D. Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh. He called it an "exercise in futility."

The bill challenges the right of government to draft men to fight in a war that has not been declared a war by Congress. The U.S. Constitution gives Congress the power to declare war.

Wish and Hope
"It's more of a wish and a hope than anything else," said Steinhilber, who said Congress' constitutional authority to raise and support armies, and the president's role as commander in chief of the armed forces, have been adhered to in the Vietnam War. He said "this has been defined pretty well on several occasions by the court," and that efforts by Wisconsin and 14 other state legislatures where similar bills have been introduced (one has been passed in Massachusetts and is under court review now) have little chance of accomplishing anything.

The assembly's Veterans Affairs committee will hold a public hearing on the bill next month. Both Rep. Michael G. Ellis, R - Neenah, and Gordon (Bud) Bradley, R-Oshkosh, are against it.

Foreign Policy
"I don't really see whereby the State of Wisconsin, by passing this legislation, is going to really prove anything," Ellis said. "I'm going to vote against it, because to me, it's a political thing," Bradley said.

He said he would vote against it if former President Lyndon Johnson were still in office; he said he didn't think the Senate's action was politically motivated. The Senate is controlled by Republicans. "I don't feel the states should get involved in foreign policy," he went on, and said that the state legislature should spend more of its time fighting problems in the state, leaving foreign policy in the hands of Congress and the President. "We've got the greatest war to fight right here," he said, "and that's the dollar war." He said rapidly increasing state and local taxes to finance increased governmental spending requires lawmakers in Madison to try to "bring sanity back into government" at that level before speaking out on foreign policy. "It is a preposterous proposition that the state legislature should be involved, should dilute the time it has to deal with state problems," he said, "to try to affect changes in foreign policy, Ellis said. "I don't think we can afford that."

Six Schools

which Mrs. Hoffman claimed numbered about 50 — less than half of the school's parents — has urged the closing while some other Jackson parents, possibly a majority, have maintained their faith in the board of education and its decisions.

From a comparative standpoint, Jackson and Columbus probably are the worst buildings in the school system's 23-building operation, although some may point to serious inadequacies at the three Grand Chute schools.

Both schools were badly in need of repairs, chiefly because they were left virtually unmaintained since the mid-1960s. However, the voices of distraught parents finally resulted in the start on a small improvement at both schools, but neither job has been completed.

Extreme Expense
The administration said that more improvements will be made this summer when daily emergencies aren't taking up most of the time of the maintenance force. Temporary improvements must be limited because extensive ones would require meeting new state codes and extreme expense.

But the main issues must be why those responsible didn't maintain the buildings to some degree and what they will do in the future and when.

It's unclear how official the decision was but it definitely was anticipated as far back as 1965 that three central schools should be closed by 1971. An administration map showing all schools in 1965 indicated this.

Regional and city planners called for closing at least Washington and Jackson long before 1965 but keeping Columbus open possibly close to that date.

However, no board of education commitment was made — or has been yet. The board has, at least in recent years, avoided commitments until it is absolutely sure of the direction its building will go because of unpredictable factors of enrollment increase and parochial-to-public student shifts.

Enrollment grew from about 8,000 to over 14,000 from 1962 to 1968, and this included 1,000-student increases in the latter years. The 1,000 students represents the need for one large elementary school.

Two Choices
The board was forced into a position of choosing between building new schools, mainly on the fringe areas to meet new enrollment demands, or building a replacement for the 'central city schools, said Charles Buchanan, board of education vice chairman and chief architect of the board's five-year improvement projections since they were instituted in 1967.

It made two assumptions — it must provide new classrooms and provide them in the location most accessible to the largest number of students, he said. The latest of these projects is the planned north-central elementary school adjacent to Einstein Junior High. The current five-year plan calls for completing that in 1972, with no new schools to handle enrollment gains foreseen in the next five years.

Mrs. Hoffman said that there wasn't adequate student population in the Einstein area to justify building the elementary school there next year. She said the board should delay that project and move immediately to building a central city school or an alternative, to eliminate these facilities.

Mrs. Hoffman, who is running for alderman in the 17th Ward, said that it's time the board of education start looking at the central city situation.

Still a Need
While population apparently hasn't grown as rapidly as expected near Einstein, administrators said there still is a need for the school. There are fears that a shift in priorities might doom or at least delay the north-central school.

The central city school was first officially mentioned in 1968's five-year plan. The plan called for a central city or north-central school to open in 1972, with the assumption that even the north-central school would ease student pressures on at least Jackson school.

The north-central school was shifted to a 1971 opening in the 1969 plan and the central city to 1975, where it remained in the 1970 plan. The alternative to the central school is a Franklin addition.

While the plans are tentative — and annually updated — they generally are followed as closely as possible and have given the district an important tool in meeting capital improvement needs.

Some Jackson parents don't put much faith in the five-year plans because they aren't real commitments, as the shift in the central school priority has shown.

Also Dropped
The outlying schools have suffered from priority changes because all three were due for $200,000 improvements, mainly multi-purpose rooms in earlier five-year plans. But these plans also were dropped.

The juggling of building priorities hasn't all been the board of education's doing. The board had wanted to build an addition to Franklin School in 1969 to possibly allow closing Jackson or at least reduce student pressures there, but the fiscal board pressed the school board into shelving that plan.

The board had eyed the addition as a means to ease student pressure in the north.

The north-central area probably represents the last area of student pressure the board must conquer in the near future. The new north-central school will culminate a 22-year, intensive building program, solving a facilities problem created in part because no elementary schools had been built between 1906 and 1950.

During the building program, the only replacement schools were Edison elementary school in 1961 and McKinley School in 1968. Both were larger than the originals.

Buchanan said the district's building program has been laudable, putting it in the enviable position of not having to build any new structures — additions included — between 1972 and 1975.

This gives rise to the question of possibly pushing up the date for the north-central school or Franklin addition. Buchanan said he couldn't predict whether this would happen but the capital improvements plan committee is now updating the five-year plan for adopting in July.

Effect on Priorities
Buchanan said that a revised plan probably would have some effect on priorities, but Mrs. Hoffman said she doubted this change would occur, based on past experiences.

There is another factor which may enhance chances for a central city school sooner, and that is the favorable bonding situation. The school isn't at its bonding limit and, in fact, its bond debt retirement has dropped recently.

Kenneth Sager, board president, said that recent city action will bring the board of education to an extended discussion of the central city problem — as well as all future capital improvements needs — but he said it was questionable whether the board would change its thinking.

He noted the board had gone with the north-central school because it promised to allow at least the conversion of the outlying and central schools exclusively to primary units. The idea would be to convert them so they house only kindergarten through primary 3 (grades 1-3) pupils.

This has been an alternative mentioned over the years because it would ease pupil pressure on the small schools, administrators have said. Also, the primary pupils don't miss the complete gym facilities, including baskets, as much as intermediates (grades 4-6).

There has been a move in this direction. Only Columbus has three intermediate grades now, and Washington has only primary. Woodlawn has only intermediate 1, and the other three have only intermediate 1 and 2, not 3 (sixth grade). This procedure requires additional busing.

Mrs. Harold Danford, a board of education member who has criticized the two central school buildings' conditions, said she could see no other solution at this time, except a new central city school. But she noted there would be problems of finding a site and the size.

One school couldn't serve all three schools' populations because they're located too far apart, she said.

Nevertheless, she said the board must seriously search for a solution to the problem. She doesn't believe that the cries about Jackson and Columbus are unjustified.

Help for Teacher Pledged

A Madison group has pledged to support Frank Boyle, an English teacher at Brillion High School who was suspended Feb. 15 for his teaching practices and later reinstated.

Boyle had been with the school three weeks when he came under fire "for methods and ideas of teaching". His rumored firing had brought about a sit-in demonstration Feb. 12 by students who supported him.

The Wisconsin Coalition for Educational Reform, a group of students, teachers and parents recently organized in Madison, will attempt to change the attitude of the Brillion Board of Education and the superintendent toward Boyle, a press release issued by the group last week said.

It claimed in part: "Boyle, who joined the Brillion School system in January, was suspended last month by Brillion School Superintendent Gaylord Unbehaun after Boyle sought to 'democratize' his English and Speech classes. "Boyle consulted his students on their opinions of his teaching methods — a practice that Unbehaun said he discovered while monitoring Boyle's classroom on the school's public address system.

Kindergarten Signup Planned in Appleton

Registration for children entering kindergarten in the Appleton Public School system this September have been set for March 29 through April 2.

Parents will be able to register children in the school in their area from 8:30 to 11:45 a.m. and from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Immunization information and birth certificates are needed.

Children who will be five years old on or before Dec. 1, 1971, may enter kindergarten this September.

Board Told to Keep County Farm Land

The Outagamie County county with land committed Board's public property and only to future county hospital parks committee has unanimously recommended that the County Chairman Nick Karas, Appleton, read a letter from William Sirek, FVTI director, indicating that housing would be needed in the Appleton area for 50 to 100 students this fall and for 650 to 750 students in the fall of 1972.

The action, if endorsed by the entire board on April 20, would eliminate any county involvement in development of student housing at the new Fox Valley Technical Institute (FVTI).

Karas said he also was told by Sirek that it wasn't necessary for the housing to be adjacent to the school.

Developers Interested
At the same time, Karas said, he has received a number of telephone calls from developers who said they were interested in the privately owned land in the FVTI area.

A representative of a Madison architectural firm objected to eliminating the county land from consideration. The main purpose of considering the county land, he said, was to keep the land cost low so the rental costs could be kept down.

James Mead, chairman of the Town of Grand Chute park commission and open space committee of the Fox Valley Council of Governments, objected to the philosophy "I don't see why the county should give any land away," he said. "If they sell it, they should do it at competitive bidding."

Health Career Day Saturday

50 Occupations in Hospital Work to be Told to Students

A health careers day to inform interested students of occupations available in that field will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at Appleton Memorial Hospital.

More than 50 careers in nursing, physical therapy, medicine and laboratory and X-ray technology will be discussed.

People working in the health areas will explain their duties and training. Tours of the building will be conducted and additional information about health careers will be available through printed materials and a film.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. Dr. Neil Brahe, lecturer to the dental profession, will speak at 10:15 a.m.

Lunch will be served at noon. A 50 cent fee for lunch will be charged at registration.

The career day is sponsored by the women's auxiliaries of St. Elizabeth, Appleton Memorial and Kaukauna Community hospitals and the Outagamie County Medical Society Auxiliary.

James R. Watters

During 1970, this Woodmen Accident and Life District Manager qualified for attendance at the Company's annual LEADING PRODUCERS' SEMINAR which will be held in beautiful Boca Raton, Florida.

Attendance at this important event is limited to the select group of District Managers who have exceeded a specific goal in the sale of life, health and group insurance protection.

Through advanced instruction, the Seminar will enable those who attend to increase their sales and service capabilities — thus providing a wider scope of financial security for many individuals, families and businesses.

The effort this District Manager put forth to qualify for the Leading Producers' Seminar deserves a special tribute, so won't you join us in congratulating

Moderate Is Likely Choice For Next Premier in Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A hard-line right-wing Protestant rebel who has challenged the British government's policy of moderation for Northern Ireland made a last-minute bid today to be prime minister.

But Development Minister Brian Faulkner, who has given a clear indication of willingness to go along with the policy of carrying on reforms demanded by London, to right long-standing complaints by Roman Catholics of discrimination in housing and jobs, was rated an odds-on choice to win.

The challenge came from William Craig, former home affairs minister who was read out of the ruling Unionist parliamentary party for fighting two previous prime ministers. He succeeded in bringing both down

Can't Vote

Even though Craig, the darling of the Protestant militants who want gun-toting police and British troops to move into Roman Catholic districts accused of harboring Irish Republican Army terrorists, was nominated he can't vote for himself in the Union party caucus which will choose the next prime minister Tuesday.

Faulkner, 50, had been expected to be the lone candidate to succeed James Chichester-Clark. Faulkner lost to Chichester-Clark by one vote in 1969.

Faulkner and Craig were nominated today at a caucus made up of the 31 members of the Protestant-based Unionist party in Northern Ireland's Parliament. Thirty-six Unionists were elected to the 52-member Parliament in February 1969. But Craig and four others were read out of the party for refusing to toe the line and are not entitled to vote in party caucuses.

The British government made clear earlier that whoever replaced Chichester-Clark must follow his moderate policies or risk having London take over the provincial government. Harold Wilson, the leader of the opposition Labour party, backed the government position, but Home Secretary Reginald Maudling said the government would take over direct rule of the province "only as a last resort."

Blood Bath
Craig had warned that any move in that direction would be "resisted and could lead to a blood bath."

Gerry Fitt, pro-Republican independent member of the British Parliament from Belfast, also predicted that a British takeover would lead to further trouble.

Chichester-Clark resigned Saturday under heavy right-wing pressure to crack down hard on gunmen of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Faulkner was predicted ready to make at least one move to appease his party's militants—the rearming of Northern Ireland's riot police. The force, made up almost entirely of Protestants, was stripped of its weapons at the height of clashes between Protestants and the Roman Catholic minority in August 1969.

Direct Control

When the conflicts over equal rights in voting, jobs and housing came near civil war, Britain took direct control of internal security and sent troops to the province. Some 8,200 are stationed here now, and another 1,300 are scheduled to arrive this week.

Faulkner, a wealthy businessman and recent convert to moderation, could have trouble gaining confidence of both sides. His earlier conservative stance, Belfast and Londonderry—the earned him the distrust of the Catholics, while the Protestants relatively quiet over the week-hard-liners don't approve of his end recent changeover.

But he is considered an able politician, and many believe he will have greater success bar-out in a bottling plant in the gaming with the British government than Chichester-Clark did. They didn't know whether the Despite the political upheaval, blaze was set

Intermediate cities on tracks not chosen by Railpax are expected to lose passenger service shortly after May 1

Coeds Flee In Nude From Man

MANITOWOC (AP)—Authorities said they hoped to question a man today about the emergence from a snow-cloaked woods of three unclothed coeds.

The three 19-year-old girls, students at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, told officials a man with whom they had obtained a car ride Friday forced them at knife point to disrobe.

They said they discarded their garments, seized the knife threw it into a snowbank, and fled barefooted to a farmhouse. They were treated at a hospital for cuts and bruises suffered during their woodland dash.

Officials said the UWM freshmen, two of them from Kenosha and the third from Hartland, had gotten a ride near their Milwaukee dormitory Friday while hitchhiking to Algoma.

They said the man stopped at Point Beach State Park north of Two Rivers, and ordered his passengers to undress.

McCloskey Says He Might Face Nixon in Primary

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., who has annoyed fellow California Republicans with his antiwar criticism, said Sunday he might challenge President Nixon in Wisconsin's 1972 presidential preference primary.

McCloskey, addressing a University of Wisconsin audience, said someone in the GOP should question national policies which lead to "war crimes against people who aren't our enemies."

He has called for discussion of impeaching Nixon concerning the conduct of the Vietnam conflict.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan criticized McCloskey during a speech to his state's largest GOP volunteer organization, and the group, the California Republican Assembly, censured the congressman in a resolution Sunday in Los Angeles.

McCloskey referred to the CRA as a conservative organization, but offered no further reply to the censure.

Speaking at a student-sponsored UW symposium on social affairs, McCloskey said he may enter 1972 primaries if current war policies continue, if Congress doesn't cut off Vietnam war funding, and if no "reasonable" antiwar spokesman emerges in the 1972 campaign.

Among candidates whom he described as "reasonable" were Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., Mayor John Lindsay of New York and Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore.

'Romance' For Anne Is Denied

LONDON (AP) — Olympics horseman Richard Meade says he and young Princess Anne are "more than casual acquaintances, but to talk about a romance is making a mountain out of a molehill."

He was commenting on a Belgian newspaper report that Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip planned to send their 20-year-old daughter on a world tour to dampen her interest in Meade.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman said Sunday, "The queen knows of Princess Anne's friendship with Mr. Meade," but declared "there is no truth at all in any disagreement over it."

Moreover, he said, there is no plan for any sort of world tour, although Anne will go to Canada with her parents in May.

Meade, a 1968 gold medal winner in Olympic equestrianism at Mexico City, said he last met the princess at a private party in London a couple of months ago.

He said they have been out together "in the sense we have been with a group of others." She is an enthusiastic and able horsewoman.

"Let us say that our paths have crossed a lot," Meade said.

Both being horse-loving types, he explained, "sometimes we see each other at parties and social events because naturally we share mutual friends."

An Earth Day Celebrated Spring Greeted in Central Park

NEW YORK (AP)—It was a seed-planting, Krishna-chanting, kite-flying Frisbee-fing, bon-go-playing, guitar-strumming, pot - smoking, hippie - rapping Central Park happening.

It was an Earth Day and the first day of spring and nearly 3,000 persons, mostly youths in their favorite blue jeans and second-hand jackets, turned out Sunday to tune in the season.

Activities at the sunny but chilly park were sponsored by the People for Earth Day, which plans several days of environmental concern this spring including the principal Earth Day on April 22.

At the United Nations, Secretary General U Thant rang a peace bell contributed by Japan and delivered a brief Earth Day address.

"An Earth Day has suddenly become necessary to remind us of the fact that our small planet is perishable," he said.

"At long last the concepts of Earth Day, of world patriotism and of the family of man have come into being. May this new chapter of united world history be written with determination, tolerance and deep common concern for all.

"May there only be peaceful and cheerful Earth Days to come for our beautiful spaceship earth as it continues to spin and circle in frigid space with its warm and fragile cargo of animate life," Thant said.

Little Big Cat Lion-Hearted Runt

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Vici is a bowlegged runt lion that weighs 100-odd pounds and likes to sit in your lap.

At the age of 2 he ought to be four times as big, but he has a deprived infancy. As a result he seems to have stopped growing.

Vici has never seen another lion, and is believed to think he is himself a dog. He has at least seen other dogs, and he eats dog food. But he's scared to death of butterflies.

The little lion was brought to the Small Animal Clinic at Michigan State University 18 months ago by an original owner who had not fed him properly.

"There wasn't a bone in Vici's body without a pathological fracture from malnutrition," said Dixie Middleton, an X-Ray technician at the clinic who volunteered to nurse the 27-pound cat back to health.

"He had a broken jaw and all his bones were deformed when I got him. We had to give him a pelvis operation to keep him alive.

"He's really a big baby now. Sometimes I forget he's a lion."

Miss Middleton said Vici will require further surgery to correct an engaging bow-legged stance but he's coming on nicely.

Miss Middleton pays for his dog food, about $1 day, and takes him on daily strolls on a leash around the parking lot behind the clinic.

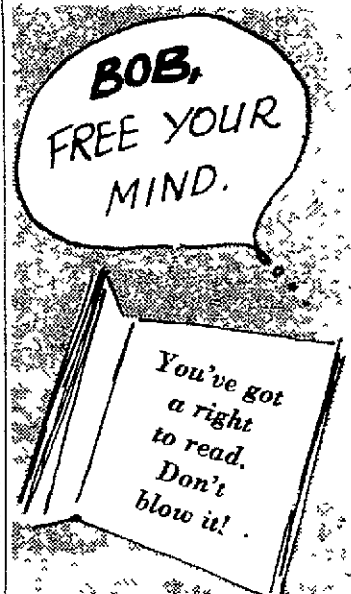

"The first day I took him outside a butterfly flew over his head and scared him so bad he hid his head between my legs," she recalls.

"He's a cat but he's affectionate like a dog. If you sit down, he wants to be in your lap immediately. When he groans like that, he's talking to us. He's never seen another lion—he wouldn't know how to act around one if he did."

Vici likes to rub against Miss Middleton's legs—"I go through a pair of nylons a day"—and licks her hands and face when they get into a playful tussle.

Said Dr. Ulreh Mostosky, a radiologist: "He's a lot of fun."

Vici's future at the clinic is uncertain. "I imagine as long as he is a good boy, we'll keep him around," Miss Middleton said.

Soviets Have Added To Egypt's Air Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has bolstered Egypt's air defenses with about 90 more MIG21 jet interceptors since late last year, U.S. intelligence reports indicate.

The Soviets also have strengthened Egypt's force of SU7 and earlier model MIG fighter bombers which could support ground troops, Pentagon sources said.

According to recent U.S. intelligence reports, the Egyptians have 220 MIG21s, 206 MIG17s and MIG15s, and 120 SU7s.

This compares with an earlier assessment that, as of last December, Egypt's Russian-built air force owned 128 MIG21s, 150 MIG17s and 15s, and 97 SU7s.

A small force of old bombers has remained stable in numbers.

SAM Defenses

The extent of any Russian buildup of surface-to-air missiles in Egypt in recent months was not available, but as of the end of 1970, U.S. military sources said, the SAM defenses were formidable—360 SA2 launchers and 120 SA3 launchers.

The SA2 is fired at high-flying planes, the SA3 against lower flying attackers.

The increase in Egypt's military power during the months of the cease-fire has included significantly more M18 troop-carrying helicopters and huge artillery pieces as well as other equipment, the sources said.

The new materiel was shipped through the Dardanelles in a stream of ships checked to their Egyptian destinations by U.S. reconnaissance planes. U.S. officials are silent on other means of gathering information on Soviet military shipments.

More Jets

Meanwhile, the United States has been furnishing Israel more jets, tanks and other military gear under a $500 million appropriation voted by the last Congress.

The breakdown of military hardware being provided to the Israelis under this allotment has not been made public, but the United States has supplied a total of about 50 F4 phantom fighter bombers and A4 Skyhawk fighter bombers.

The remainder of Israel's striking power includes about 225 French-built jets.

There have been reports that Israel's aircraft industry is beginning to turn out small numbers of fighters patterned on French models.

Chaminade's Spring Concert All 'Love-ly'

Fox Cities Women's Chorus Giving Its 29th Annual Program Saturday, April 3

BY JINGO
Here's a wonderful sign of Spring as far as the churp of the first Robin Redbreast is concerned. As certain as the churp of the first Robin Redbreast is, the Chaminade concert — this year April 3 at Lawrence Memorial Chapel.

Jingo

The program is as romantic as springtime, too, with its theme "Love Is." Music by Chaminade. This year's concert marks the 29th for the Fox Cities Chaminade Women's Chorus! That's quite a record. Arvid Kramer, music man at Appleton High-West, is director this season. Roland Hebel is the accompanist extraordinary. It's a wise idea to get your ticket supply early from any of the Chaminade member, although Jingo's been told there will be a few available at the door the night of the concert.

Concert time is 8 p.m. promptly. Organ Accompaniment "Love is the Quiet Strength" is the name of the first section of the program, highlighting Haydn's "The Heavens are Telling" from The Creation. Hebel will accompany the choristers on the chapel organ for this number which promises to be superb.

In lighter, more popular vein is the second section, aptly titled "Love is a Dream Fulfilled." Burt Bacharach's "What the World Needs Now is Love, Love, Love" is in this grouping. Then comes "Love is Where you Find It," a bright grouping of songs and accompanying dance numbers. There'll be medleys from musicals and a dancing surprise, something quite new added to the Chaminade unage. This year there will be original dance routines to illustrate the melodies. They'll be done under the direction of Marcia's School of the Dance.

It sounds like a pleasant evening.

Burnett Show Shifts Site, Result Good

BY TV SCOUT

9-10 Channels 2-7 — The Carol Burnett Show shifted location for a week to tape a show in New York — and the cast is all-star. Opera stars Marilyn Horne and Eileen Farrell join TV talk show David Frost on the program. Miss Farrell does an aria and then switches to the pop medium for "Swanee." Miss Horne offers "Uno Voce Poco Fa," the aria from "The Barber of Seville" which won her an ovation when she performed it at the Metropolitan. Frost lends his wit to a comedy sketch, portraying a veddy British, veddy proper salesman who is selling to two nouveau riche Americans (Miss Burnett and Harvey Korman.) Carol, Marilyn and Eileen sing "You Can Drive a Person Crazy" from Company and the finale sketch is an Italian version of "Cinderella" with Carol in the lead. Miss Horne and Miss Farrell as the wicked step sisters and David Frost as narrator.

6:30-7 Channel 5 — Walt Disney's production of Winnie the Pooh and the Honey Tree should not be missed in this repeat. Based on A. A. Milne's classic, with Sterling Holloway providing the voice of Winnie, the teddy bear, and five songs by Richard and Robert Sherman, this is a classic.

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7 — If everyone suddenly looks younger on Gunsmoke that's because they are repeating an episode from 1966. John Saxon stars as a farmer, out of prison, hoping to recover the hidden, stolen money. Edward Asner, now of Mary Tyler Moore's show, is here, along with Jacqueline Scott.

7-8 Channel 5 — Debbie Reynolds brightens up Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In, appearing with Ruth Buzzi in a series of blackouts which cast them as stewardesses on Burbank Airlines' holiday flight to Tijuana. Debbie is also a circus knife-thrower, trying to bring some excitement into her life by running away with a midget.

7:30-8 Channels 2-7 — Lucille Ball turns into a Ralph Nader type on Here's Lucy when a stereo set she buys for her son's birthday doesn't work. She takes it back, per the guarantee, to the store only to discover the teeny print, teeny-weeny print and teeny-weeny print.

8-8:30 Channels 2-7 — Mayberry R.F.D. still has a couple of new shows to go before repeats. Tonight a city planner comes to town — as Millie (Arlene Golonka) leaves to visit

Despite Her Height of 5 feet, 10½ inches, actress Sally Kellerman has made it in the movies. She won an Oscar nomination for best supporting actress for her performance as Hot Lips Houlihan in M-A-S-H. Currently she is starring in "Labyrinth" that's being filmed in Hollywood. Miss Kellerman doesn't think her height is a problem, but that it was used as a convenient excuse for turning her down for various roles. (AP Wirephoto)

Questions Drivers Ask Unmarked Squad Cars Keep Drivers Honest

This feature is one of a weekly series bringing together questions on highway rules and regulations — how you can drive more safely, for yourself and others — as asked by Wisconsin motorists, together with authoritative answers as given by state officials of the agencies involved. It is presented as a public service to our readers.

Q Why do police traffic departments, including the state patrol, have the so-called unmarked squad cars, that are not painted like regular squad cars and that do not carry regular license plates? They may catch a few violators, but wouldn't it impress people more and cause them to drive better if they could always see and identify police vehicles?

A The distinctively painted her sister. The city planner turns out to be a beautiful female (Rita Lee) and Sam (Ken Berry) finds he must spend a lot of time with her—business, you know.

8:30-9 Channels 2-7 — The Doris Day Show repeats the episode which had Doris moving to San Francisco and finding her apartment over an Italian restaurant, Kaye Ballard (only now she spells it Kay) and Bernie Kopell are the owners of the building and restaurant. There is one scene where Doris stops traffic to get a runaway dog back.

8:30-9:30 Channels 11-9 — ABC-TV news commentator Howard K. Smith interviews President Nixon in the first hour-long, live interview the chief executive has granted White House Conversation. The President and Howard K. Smith follows the example set by Today Show's Barbara Walters and goes her one step better in having a live interview. The conversation will originate from the White House and Mr. Smith will be the only newsmen speaking with the President.

ICBMs to be Tested in Pacific

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is planning to test multiwarhead intercontinental missiles on some uninhabited South Pacific islands, officials have said.

Testing and monitoring installations are to be set up on Canton, Enderberry and neighboring islands, roughly 2,000 miles south-southwest of Hawaii and 4,000 miles from the U.S. mainland.

The officials said the testing facilities are important for updating the nation's 1,000 Minute-man missiles and increasing the number of triple-warhead Minuteman IIIs from 50 to 550.

The Soviets also are known to be working on multiwarhead and other ICBM improvements. Since the United States and Britain jointly own the islands, the U.S. will pay Britain a ten year rent of $250,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — Receptionists get bored by the same old cracks of hearing:

"Seen any interesting faces lately besides mine?"

"Why is it that no receptionist ever reads a book less than 1,000 pages long? Does reading small books hurt your eyes?"

"What do I want to see him about? Well, just give him my name and tell him I didn't come here to lend him money."

"What's a pretty smart girl like you doing in a pretty dull job like this?"

"Your face is so familiar I'm sure I've met you somewhere else, honey. Have you been there?"

"There's a dozen roses and a box of chocolates in your future, baby, if you get me in to see him in the next five minutes."

One .two.three . . .

"Excuse me, you startled me. I thought you moved."

"I guess in your line of work at least your feet get a good rest."

"No, I don't want you to tell him who I am. I want to surprise him."

Wasting Time

"Why don't we both get together and quit wasting each other's time? You told me he wasn't in the day before yesterday. You told me he wasn't in yesterday. Now you tell me he isn't in today. I suspect he won't be in tomorrow or the day after tomorrow. Confidentially, however, and strictly between us, two, do you think there's a possibility he might be in the day after the day after tomorrow?"

"What sign of the zodiac were you born under? I'm a Pisces man myself. You know, the silent, withdrawn, sensitive type."

"Well, if he's busy, is there anybody else here who is worth telling my tale of woe to?"

"Myrtle, we're all going out to lunch now. We should be back in a Martini or three. If my wife calls, give her hell for me. And if the boss calls, tell him I'm tied up with a long-distance call. When we get back—and we may then you can go to lunch."

"Just tell me what day he gets paid, and I'll know when I can reach him."

"Myrtle, this is Monday repeat Monday repeat Monday. I've had a 48-hour weekend quarrel with my wife, my teenage daughter called me 'stupid' as I left the house this morning, six fat ladies stepped on my feet in the subway, and I've got three weeks work piled up on my desk. So don't let anyone into my office unless he has a smile on his face and a basket full of $100 bills in his hands."

"Just pass the word to him that if I don't see him I'll sue him—and have more fun doing it."

"Hi, good looking, how about putting on the feed bag with me tonight? You buy the steaks and I'll bring the wine."

"Some bosses sure do hire the loveliest watchdogs, honey. But you've got the prettiest fangs I've seen all week."

"Par'n me, Ma'am, but is it all right if I move to another chair? I've been sitting here so long I think I've worn a hole in this one."

"Don't bother to announce me. I'll just breeze right in stick a free cigar in his kisser and jump right in his lap."

"All he has to do is pay up—and I'll shut up."

"I'm tired of sitting here staring out this same window. Don't you have another window with a better view?"

"I guess I should have brought along my knitting."

"It isn't that I'm exactly in a hurry, young lady, but I do have a life of my own to live—and I don't want to live it all here."

"I wouldn't exactly say you've got middle-age spread, Myrtle, but a job like yours is bound to widen something be-

Quart Size Milk Carton Creates Miniature Castle

BY CAPPY DICK

A milk carton of quart size or bigger can be turned into a miniature castle by following today's fun-project directions.

of the carton, cut turrets around the edge, also as in figure 2, and place a snugly-fitting piece of cardboard into the carton to serve as a flat roof.

For a door, glue a piece of light brown construction paper to the carton after cutting it to the proper size and shape and decorating it with dark brown crayon to resemble heavy wood planks.

The final step is to cover the walls of the carton with small pebbles to resemble field stones. Attach them with glue, starting at the bottom of a wall and proceeding toward the top. Do this work while the castle lays on its side. When one side has been covered, turn the castle to another side and cover the next wall.

Outline the doorway with larger, flat stones.

Your Money's Worth Shop Around for Home Improvement Loans

loan. And if you are typical, this is when you will save money just by learning how to shop for this type of loan.

To begin with, I'm assuring that you can't finance your improvements without borrowing. Most people can't — which is why home improvement loans today total $4 billion.

I'm assuming, too, that you are aware charges on home improvement loans can vary sharply from lender to lender, but you're vague on details. Thus, it's probably news to you you can pay as much as 18 to 24 per cent or more or can get this type of loan for half these rates. Specifically:

(1) Go first to your local bank, credit union or savings association and ask each what would be the least expensive way to raise the cash you need. You may be told that a regular passbook loan would be the least expensive, but, of course, you must have a savings account against which to borrow. On a regular home improvement loan from one of these sources the interest rate should range between 11 and 13 per cent, the maximum loan amount usually will be between $3,500 and $5,000, and the maximum repayment period is typically five years.

FHA Loans
(2) Inquire at your local lending institutions about "Title I" and other loans which are insured by the Federal Housing Administration in Washington. The maximum for this type of loan is $5,000, repayable within seven years and 32 days. The maximum interest rate for a $2,500 one-year loan is 10.57 per cent and for a $5,000 loan, 9.58 per cent — modestly below the interest rates charged on regular commercial bank home improvement loans. These loans are available for virtually any project which will improve the liveability of your house and grounds — but not for luxury improvements such as burglar alarms and swimming pools. It's quite possible banks in your neighborhood are not making FHA loans because of their low interest rate ceiling, but ask about them anyway.

(3) Do not agree to the loan terms which may be offered by your home improvement contractor without first checking up on terms offered by local lending institutions.

(4) Consider raising funds by refinancing your mortgage at today's mortgage interest rates plus closing costs. Your mortgage may include clauses which will let you refinance under favorable terms. Again, at least check into this.

Borrowing Against Insurance
(5) The cheapest way of all well may be borrowing against the cash value of your life insurance policy. You surely know this, but if you do take this route, make a pledge to repay your loan.

(6) A little known source of home improvement loans is the so-called "little FHA" loan, available in limited numbers to lower income homeowners living in rural communities with populations of 5,500 or less. The typical interest rate on these federally subsidized loans is currently 7 1/4 per cent (although the rate can be as low as 1 per cent for those in the lowest income bracket), and the loans are repayable over a 33-year period. You're almost certainly not eligible, but my point is the importance of shopping — and if you are eligible, inquire at the county Farmers Home Administration office.

(7) And also shop not only for the most favorable interest rate, but also for other financial advantages such as the lowest charge (if any) for processing your loan and the lowest penalties (if any) for early repayment.

A final note: Start now. Mortgage money is becoming increasingly available, lenders are looking for customers, rates are sliding moderately.

Woman, Daughter Injured in Crash Saturday Afternoon

A rural Kaukauna woman and her young daughter were treated and released from St. Elizabeth Hospital after a two-car mishap Saturday afternoon which extensively damaged the vehicles involved.

Police identified the drivers as Eugene L. Micke, 21, route 2, Kaukauna, and Eugene N. Zastrow, 25, 317 N. Appleton St.

Micke's wife, Kathleen, 21, and their daughter Carolyn, 6 months, were treated at the hospital, respectively for a bloody nose and bruises, and a bump on the forehead. They were transported to the hospital by Gold Cross ambulance.

Zastrow was advised to see a doctor for bruises, police said, and later complained of neck and back injuries.

Police said Zastrow was eastbound on Franklin Street, and Micke northbound on Superior Street, prior to the mishap. Damage to the cars was estimated at $2,500.

Reitzner Second In Meet Scoring; Matson Fifth

Appleton West's Rich Reitzner down 44, 10 more than runnerup finished second, and Neenah's Milwaukee Tech's Lenny Pre-Rick Matson placed fifth on the individual scoring chart for the 1971 WIAA State Basketball Tournament in Madison.

Reitzner, also named to the all-tournament team for the second year in a row, tallied 61 points in three games, for a 20.3 52.3 field goal average. Follow-up average. His peak performance was a 28-point splurge against Cumberland Friday night.

Matson connected for 57 points also in three games for a 19.0 average. He had his best effort of 23 in Neenah's 70-69 triumph over Wausau East for third place Saturday.

Wausau East's Bob Steif grabbed the tournament scoring title with 90 points in three games for a 30-point average. Steif's 39 points against Neenah Saturday tied the fourth-best single-game mark in the history of the tourney (The all-time high of 44 was set by Shawano's Marty Gharriy vs. Eau Claire Memorial in a 1958 quarter-final game).

Stewart Third

Milwaukee King's William Stewart fired in 60 points to take third place, while Wausau East's Jim Martell was fourth with 58.

Trailing Matson, in order, were Lenny Prewitt, Milwaukee Tech (51); Bob Luchsinger, Janesville Parker (51); Tim Moriarty, Appleton West (49); Mike Goodwin, Milwaukee King (45); Dick Meier, Janesville Parker (45); Jeff Paulson, Janesville Parker (43); and Dan Cantillon (43).

Alex Johnson Benched, but Angels Get by Padres, 7-5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Alex Johnson, the American League batting king last season, is off to a bad start this spring and it has nothing to do with his hitting.

Rather it is Johnson's hustle that presents the problem, and it already reportedly has cost the veteran outfielder $100.

Johnson, who has had runs with newsmen and teammates before during his career at Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cincinnati and now the California Angels, tasted only one inning before Manager Lefty Phillips benched him.

It didn't seem to affect his teammates as they went on to beat the San Diego Padres 7-5 in exhibition baseball.

Home runs highlighted many of the other games, along with two sterling mound performances by Joe Niekro of Detroit and John Strohmeier of Montreal.

Rookie Bobby Brooks hit two three-run homers as Oakland beat Cleveland 10-6, Minnesota slashed four homers for a 4-3 triumph over Houston and Art Shamsky stroked a grand slam to boost the New York Mets past Boston 5-4.

Jacksonville Open Sudden-Death Win Gary Player's First

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Gary Player, declaring "I'm the fittest man playing golf today," plans to battle it out with the world's best for another 11 years; then hang up his cleats.

"I'm just coming into my peak now," he said after winning a sudden death playoff with young Hal Underwood for the $25,000 first prize in the Greater Jacksonville Open Sunday.

"I'd be able to play for a long time because I'm in such good shape, but I don't want to be playing when I'm 50 like Julius Boros," Player declared. "He enjoys it or he wouldn't do it, but I want to be with my children and do a little ranching."

"My target date for retiring right now is 45," he said. He is 34.

Player hates sudden death playoffs, even though he just won one.

"I've lost 11 sudden death playoffs," Player said. "This the first I've won. The other playoffs I won were 18 holes, and that's the proper length. Sudden death is very unfair because you turn a 72-hole tournament into a one-hole or two-hole tournament."

It took him two extra holes to dispose of the 25-year-old red-haired Underwood, who said

A Mortal Sin, Al Says of Calls Sending Meminger to Sidelines

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Coach Al McGuire wasn't too eager to talk about Thursday's defeat in the NCAA basketball playoffs until after his Marquette Warriors had won a consolation trophy by beating Kentucky 91-74.

McGuire having been named the collegiate coach of the year, sniffed about the officials' work during Thursday's victory by Ohio State, which deprived Marquette of a chance to advance to Houston.

Good Club

"Obviously we're a good club," McGuire said. "Obviously we belong in Houston."

Then he acknowledged "My pride is hurt."

Nationally ranked Marquette hadn't been beaten until the Ohio State encounter in the NCAA Midwest regional semifinals. Meminger scored 30 points to pace the Warriors past Kentucky for third place Saturday.

"This takes some of the sting out of losing to Ohio State," Meminger said after Saturday's game.

Allie McGuire, who stepped out of bounds with one of Marquette's last-minute opportunities to gain ground on the Buckeyes, said victory Thursday "just wasn't meant to be."

"Nothing went in the basket, nothing went right," the coach's son said. "I felt bad then, but I feel worse now. Now I know we're the best team."

Marquette converted 52 percent of its shots from the field, and controlled rebounds 49-23 to defeat Kentucky.

Meminger, whose fouling-out Thursday was the first of his 14 minutes against Kentucky because of four fouls.

NBA Playoff Tune Up 76ers Prove Bullet Proof

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Basketball Association playoffs don't get underway until midweek, but a nationwide television audience may have gotten a sneak preview Sunday.

With Hal Greer scoring 23 points and Archie Clark 21, the San Diego Rockets battered Philadelphia 132-114 and the Portland Trail Blazers nipped Cleveland 113-110.

Wally Jones' jump shot with 8½ minutes left put the 76ers in front of the Bullets to stay at 91-90 and they soon built the lead to seven points. Kevin Loughery topped the losers with 24 points.

Gomer Dies at 57

Oklahoma '5' to Play NIT Game Tonight Despite Jones' Death

NEW YORK (AP) — Although he moved to Oklahoma and served as line coach for 17 years under Bud Wilkinson, the University of Oklahoma's basketball team will go through with this evening's game in the National Invitation Basketball Tournament because "we feel that would be Gomer's wish."

Jones, 57, football coach at Oklahoma in 1964-5 and in his sixth year as director of athletics, collapsed and died on a subway platform Sunday night while waiting for a train. He and other members of the Oklahoma party, including his wife, Jeanette, were en route to the theater.

Coach John MacLeod, who was standing next to Jones when he died, said, "We're going to play the game because we feel that would be Gomer's wish."

Oklahoma is scheduled to meet the University of Hawaii at 5 p.m. EST, in a first-round game.

Dr. Pete Kyle McCarter, acting president of the university, issued the following statement: "Coach MacLeod, the Oklahoma team and our entire official party are stunned. The world of intercollegiate athletics has lost one of its finest leaders, but we at the university are also overcome with a great sense of personal loss. It is our sincerest judgment that it would be in accordance with Mr. Jones' desires that the game go forward."

Jones was a familiar football name dating back to the mid-1930s. A native of Cleveland, Ohio, he was a star lineman for three years at Ohio State.

He coached at John Carroll University and Martins Ferry, Ohio. High School prior to three years of Navy service during World War II. After spending the 1946 season as an assistant at the University of Nebraska.

He posted a 6-4-1 record, including a 36-19 Gator Bowl loss to Florida State. The next year Oklahoma's record was 3-7, climaxed by a 17-16 loss to Oklahoma State in the finale, the first time in 20 years the Sooners had lost to their intrastate rival.

He stepped down as coach shortly after the season although his contract had two years to run.

Parents Slate Baseball Meeting

Parents and adults interested in starting a summer baseball league for boys who live north of Highway 41 and the Town of Center area should attend a meeting at 8 p.m. today at Pennings 12 Corners.

The age group for the boys is proposed at between nine and 12 years old, but parent interest and the number of youngsters responding will determine the league ages.

Parents who have boys wanting to play who will be unable to attend the meeting should contact either John Hennessy, Quarry Rd., Appleton, or Clarence Pennings, Rt. 2, Black Creek.

PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT Disposable Soft Goods

Democratic Hopefuls Seen Using It As Means of Getting at President Nixon

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The dead- lock between the Nixon adminis- tration and Israel over total Israeli withdrawal from the Egyptian Sinai Peninsula now threatens an open break be- tween the President and promi- nent Democratic leaders.
With Mr. Nixon's patient, strenuous diplomacy to defuse the Middle East now at a climactic point, any such break from Egypt as a condition of an would confront him with a new Israel pullback from the Sinai and potent political obstacle.
Sen. Bayh Objects
carrying the danger of partisan conflict over Israel into the 1972 State William P. Roger's press presidential election conference appeal to Israel to Signs of restiveness among withdrew completely from Sinai Democratic presidential hope Sen Birch Bayh of Indiana—also a presidential hopeful— accused Rogers of putting too much pressure on Israel.

More significant than public attacks on the administration is what leading Democrats are doing privately. Sen Hubert H. Humphrey recently sent a con- fidential request direct to Presi- dent Nixon asking for a private talk on the issue of Sharm el Sheikh—the strategic entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba.
Humphrey, who wants to make another run for the presi- dency, privately claims that the state department position on total Israeli withdrawal does not represent a Nixon policy com- mitment. He tells intimates that when the President understands how much support Israel really has in this country for its refusal to withdraw from Sinai—and how good Israel's case really is—he will undercut his secretary of state.
But in fact, there isn't any basic disagreement between Rogers and the President. Thus, the former vice president's deeper purpose is to put the President on notice that pres- uring Israel could lead to a partisan split.
Just how much of this poten- tially serious break between the administration and the Demo- crats is due to political pres- sure from the American-Jewish community—a traditional polit- ical and financial bulwark of the liberal Democrats — is debat- able. Up to now, leaders of ma- jor Jewish organizations have given Mr. Nixon high marks for ending the fighting along the Suez Canal. More than any- thing else, they want a settle- ment. But behind the scenes, Jewish leaders are now stepping up their efforts to change the administration's mind on total withdrawal from Sinai.

U.S. Continues to Lower Profile in Chile

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer
SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The U.S. mission to Chile, in keeping with President Nixon's "low profile" overseas policy, methodically continues to re- duce its presence here.
The process has been going on for more than two years, long before the election and inaugu- ration last fall of Marxist Presi- dent Salvador Allende.
But, the coming to power of a leftist government, which in- cludes Communists, has had some effect.
As one U.S. source puts it, "I suppose we're reducing a little faster now than we would be."
The U.S. military mission to Chile, which totaled some 50 of- ficers and men at one time, has been reduced to about 20. The mission is finally expected to number about 15.
Embassy Staff
U.S. civilian personnel on the embassy staff and in the Agen- cy for International Develop- ment mission now total about 125 persons. The embassy has completed most of its personnel reductions but more cutbacks are contemplated at AID.
Chile is the world's largest ex- porter of copper. Because of high copper prices in recent years, the country's foreign ex- change reserves have increased to about $800 million.
Because of the healthy foreign exchange level, the AID mission has signed only one loan with Chile in the past 2½ years. That $2.5 million loan was earmarked for a scholarship fund for Chi- lean university students to en- able them to study for graduate degrees in the United States.
Financial Aid
The proposed assistance pack- age for fiscal 1972, which will be submitted to Washington for ap- proval about mid-March, reflects the U.S. disengagement from its once-massive financial aid to Chile.

The proposal emphasizes a "people-to-people" approach and has two main projects.
The scholarship fund—with the $2.5 million long since ear- marked—would begin in fiscal 1972. The previous adminis- tration, of President Eduardo Frei, never implemented the pro- gram. President Allende is re- ported to favor it.
Food for Peace
A "food for peace" program, already in existence, would con- tinue through the next fiscal year. The United States pro- vides the food at a cost of $6 mil- lion to $7 million a year. Agen- cies such as CARE and Caritas, the Roman Catholic relief or- ganization, handle the distribu- tion.
In addition to the normal cut- ting back of the aid program, sources say the United States wants to be free of extensive fi- nancial commitments if the planned nationalization of U.S. copper mining interests here proves unsatisfactory to the U.S. government.
Several weeks ago, the Nixon administration, through Amba- sador Edward M. Kerry, in- formed the Chilean government that a confiscatory nationaliza- tion policy could disrupt normal relations.
The U.S. companies—Kenne- cott, Anaconda and Cerro—have about $700 million invested in Chile.

Where we asked the famous Ghia Studios to design us a sporty Italian body.
They did.
Their drawings clutched tight- ly in hand, we secretly prowled about Europe for the best coach builder we could find.
Success. To the Karmann Coachworks of Osnabruck we handed over Ghia's sketches with the injunction:
"Make it beautiful." (Or else.)
They did.
They welded. And burnished. And sculpted. And sanded. And painted.
Until they had shaped in steel what Ghia had shaped in pencil.
Smug in the knowledge that nobody could ever mistake this beautiful car for a Volkswagen, we made it a Volkswagen.
By concealing our air-cooled engine in back. (For better trac- tion.)
And making it go about 26 miles on just one gallon.
Then we gave this Volks- wagen its final disguise:
We named it the Karmann Ghia.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss . . . and grow more hair.
For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of lab- oratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss . . . but is really grow- ing hair!
They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!
Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treat- ment worked. However, it is im- possible to help everyone.
The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern bald- ness and cannot be helped.

The Willard C. Pire Staff Wins Prudential President's Citation

They Bring Appleton Area Families a Piece of The Rock!

Under the leadership of Sales Manager Bill Pire, this award-winning team enabled their policyholders to own a piece of The Rock through the purchase of Prudential insurance.
And owning a piece of The Rock means Prudential's investments are working for them. Investments that strengthen the economy and can help pay dividends on their policies, too.
For bringing superior insurance service to their clients in this area, Prudential is proud to award the company's exclusive President's Citation to Sales Manager, Bill Pire and his staff.

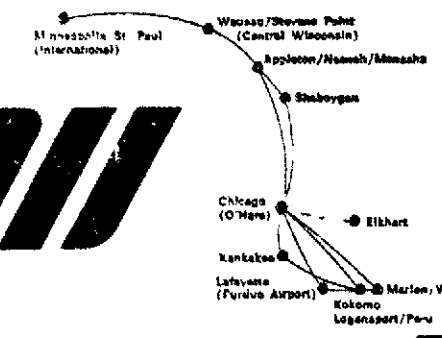

To get your piece of The Rock, see Bill or one of his staff at 226 West Wisconsin Avenue, or Call 734-5761

Humor, Whimsy Live in Island Artist's Paintings

By VIVIAN BROWN

NANTUCKET (AP) — Trick dogs, clowns, cats, Victorian sofas, babies and little girls in pantaloons from the easel of Worcester-born artist Polly Buchong, have proved successful here in the last three years.

And Polly has spent the winter getting ready for the tourist season with more of the same.

The usual artist offerings—seascapes, whales, beach flowers, and marine art—had a lean season last year but Polly's show was virtually a sell-out.

Her formula? Make them smile!

"You know, in these times, people want to be amused. There is enough trouble in the world without being dreary in art," she explained.

But there is more to it than that. Lots of the whims that show up in her art are born of nostalgic recollections of stories implanted in childhood by her father, an artist and photographer. His boyhood included being a champion bronco rider and bicycle rider, and building toy steam engines, a windmill to operate his mother's butter churn and other contraptions to help cut down his farm chores. He also conducted magic shows.

These ideas thread their way through Polly's little paintings. There are the tin lizzies, bicycles, horses and carriages. A dog may be standing on his hind legs on a sofa while his mistress sits primly. Or a clown may be holding a handful of balloons as he stands on a lawn. The paintings are fun and a carriage of babies can be hilarious.

Polly feared the baby carriage might become a cause celebre last season when two people claimed it at her show.

"I had to agree to paint another one to keep them from fighting over it. I don't like to do that, but..."

The baby carriages are the "fantastical kind" with pin-wheel style wheels and maybe a bird or bee on the hood.

Her paintings begin with a vague idea, "water parsnips or something," she says, and she lets her imagination soar. A fish might be bigger than the man holding it, and there are many intricate details.

Polly had no formal art training, "and it is just as well or I wouldn't be having so much fun drawing oversized feet and hands," she says. She paints in a polymer technique, taught her by her brother, Bobby, a gifted painter on this island.

A vivacious type, she is a practical joker. When the ferryboat chugs into port here, a visitor may not recognize Polly, who confesses that she is a frustrated actress. She may be on dock in a glamorous shocking pink burnoose, but she may be masquerading as her other self, Cora Pratt—a character who wears enormous false teeth, a crooked smile, transformations padding, bobby socks. It's a costume she wears when she acts as a maid at her brother's parties.

Miss Mary Valentyne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Valentyne, 328 S. Main St., has been named Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow winner at Kimberly High School.

What an Executor Does When There's a Death in Your Family

Inevitable as death and taxes might be, their adversity is doubled when they happen together. The blow is softened somewhat, though, and the grief less complicated when financial worries can be kept to a minimum through advance planning.

Here are some questions and answers about terms that seem to come up only when there is a death in the family.

Q. What is an executor?

A. An executor—or executor, if female—is the person designated to take care of the affairs of someone who has died.

Q. What does an executor do?

A. An executor retains a lawyer to guide the deceased's will through its legal path. This process is called probate, or proving the will's validity. The document will be examined in surrogate, probate or orphan's court, depending upon the procedure of the state.

Assembles All Property

The executor also is responsible for assembling all property belonging to the estate, including life insurance benefits, household goods, securities, mortgages, real estate interests and cash. In the presence of a state tax representative, he must remove valuables left in a safe deposit box. He must collect money owed to the deceased; appraise, manage and protect business interests; and invest funds according to the terms of the will.

Also, the executor must pay all outstanding debts and all federal, state and local taxes. He is responsible, too, for distributing the bequests designated in the will. And he must file an accounting with the court.

Q. Who appoints the executor?

A. Generally speaking the executor is named by the maker of the will. When there is no will—the person has died "intestate"—the court will appoint an executor.

Q. Is there ever more than one executor?

A. Yes. Frequently a friend or member of the family is named as one executor, and the bank is named as co-executor. The choice should be made on the basis of competence and ability to handle money matters in order to avoid unnecessary and perhaps excessive expense of both time and money.

Q. Who at the bank will take on the job of executor?

Most full service banks have complete trust departments, and it is an officer in this department who would work closely with your family to execute the terms of your will.

Q. Is the executor paid for his services?

A. Yes, but his fee varies from state to state and generally because it is on a percentage basis, it depends on the size of the estate.

Q. What difference does it make if there is no will?

A. You lose the privilege of naming your executor, and you deprive your survivors of any legal voice in how your estate—no matter what its size—is divided, and to whom it should go. In some states, for example, if a husband dies and the law says his widow will receive one-third of her husband's estate and the other two-thirds will go to their offspring, the court-appointed executor will carry out the law.

Guardian Privilege Lost

You also lose the privilege—and deprive your survivors of it as well—of naming a guardian for minor children. If a child is a minor, a guardian will have to be appointed by the court and the widow will have to file accountings to the court periodically on the status of the child's money.

Q. Should both husband and wife have wills?

A. Yes, for several reasons. Should the wife die before her husband, a will provides the means for distribution of her goods and valuables in the way she wants.

Also, should the husband and wife die either at the same time or within a short time of each other, their holdings will be distributed as they wish. If, in the husband's will everything is left to a wife, who dies shortly after him leaving no will of her own, the distribution of the estate will be carried out by the court according to state law.

Anniversary Social

KIMBERLY — A 25th anniversary social is planned by the Kimberly Recreation Association at the Darboy Club March 27, to include a program, dancing and refreshments.

Tickets for the affair must be purchased by Tuesday and are available from directors and various business establishments at a cost of $1.75 per person. The social will be limited to members of the Association.

Alimony a Question

Most women believe that a divorcee should not receive alimony if she is able to earn a living. This fact emerges from the 1970 Virginia Slims American Women's Opinion Poll conducted by Louis Harris and Associates. The recent survey shows that 62 per cent of American women oppose alimony for the divorcee who can support herself. Among those opposing alimony are more than half (56 per cent) of the divorced and separated women in the U.S.A.).

Fashion Designers Join Ecologists for Environmental Benefit

NEW YORK — "Create a Beautiful New York with the Environmental Habit" was the theme last Wednesday of a fashion show luncheon in honor of the Mayor's Council on the Environment at the Tavern on the Green in Central Park.

Mrs. John V. Lindsay and Mrs. Andrew Heiskell were co-chairmen of the event, which drew an audience of more than 200 members of local government, society and business.

Mr. and Mrs. John Weitz model ecological adaptations of his famous shirt suits in red and yellow Encron polyester doubleknits at Collins and Aikman's New York fashion show luncheon for the Mayor's Council on the Environment. Mrs. Weitz is actress Susan Kohner. At right, Mrs. John V. Lindsay in a plaid pantsuit discusses the show with George A. Tunick and actress Anne Bancroft.

Themed by 15 of this country's leading designers to create special garments for socially prominent models, for Mrs. Lindsay, commentator Anne Bancroft and Mayor's Council Director, Michael Belknap.

Theme of the show was carried through with fashion such as "street cleaner's" overalls designed for Mrs. Thomas Hoving by Geoffrey Beene ... and Tammy Grimes' all white (for clean air only) evening dress by Stavropoulos.

Carol Horn for Benson & Partners designed a hot pants outfit with blue, red and yellow pinwheel stripes for Mayor Lindsay's daughter, Mrs. Richard L. Schaffer, and Mr. and Mrs. John Weitz modeled their famous shirt suits in red and yellow C & A doubleknits.

Other designers were: Chester Weinberg for Mrs.

Lindsay; Leo Narducci for Miss Bancroft and Susan Dryfoos; Bill Blass Men for Michael Belknap; Stavropoulos for Mrs. Jack Howard and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr.; Halston Ltd. for Mrs. Theodore Sorenson; Adolfo for Mrs. Andrew Heiskell and Mrs. John Mosler, and Kasper for Joan Leslie for Miss Cathie Samuels.

Elinor Simmons for Malcolm Starr designed for Mrs. Jerome Kretchmer; Donald Brooks Boutique for Mrs. David Suskind; Carol Horn for Miss Susan Samuels; Bill Blass Ltd. for Mrs. Alan Jay Lerner; Duncan Reed by Allen Case for Fred Kent; John Weitz for Steven L. Isenberg and Stan Herman for Mr. Mort for Miss Pamela Howard.

Designers chose bright colors and clean patterns for their environmental fashions, which included several hot pants suits, evening dresses, sportswear and at-home wear.

In keeping with the theme of the event, the room was decorated in a replica of a spring garden by Nelson Ferlita of The Greenery.

The Mayor's Council, a privately funded independent organization, serves New York by creating, developing and promoting programs for a cleaner and more liveable city. Mayor Lindsay said recently: "The quality of life in the city can be greatly improved when the public and private sectors unite to achieve this goal. This is the purpose of the Mayor's Council on the Environment."

Striped Knit Hot Pants created by Carol Horn for Benson and Partners are worn by Mayor Lindsay's daughter, Mrs. Richard A. Schaffer.

Ladies Play Major Role In Reducing Income Tax

"Don't sell that used coat yet! It may be worth more to you if you simply give it away."

Apparel, sometimes unusable to the taxpayer because of weight change or other reasons, are tax deductible at the fair market value when donated to a bonafide IRS-approved charitable organization, says Henry W. Bloch, president of H & R Block, Inc.

Bloch says that taxpayers lose substantial amounts of money each year by not donating unwanted articles of clothing and other usable items to charity. Many of those who do donate these items, he reports, forget to claim a deduction when filing income tax returns, thereby forfeiting potential sizeable tax savings.

For example, a used coat with a fair market value of $300 donated to a bonafide charitable organization is as important a deduction as a cash contribution for the same amount. The fair market value is simply listed on the "other than cash" donation line under "Contributions" on Schedule A. It should be pointed out, however, that a receipt from the charitable organization must be obtained to substantiate the donation.

Unwanted books, toys, furniture, incomplete sets of dishes and almost any other type of merchandise in usable or, for some organizations, repairable condition can be donated and deducted from taxes. "Be sure to check your favorite charity's or church's thrift shop, however, to find out what kinds of merchandise they will accept. Sometimes it is advantageous to contribute to more than one," he advises.

"This is only one of many ways that a woman can reduce taxes on her own return or on a joint return." The tax expert lists the following additional and seldom-used deductibles: Amounts paid in excess of the fair market value for merchandise, goods, services, etc., sold by charitable organization, e.g. tickets to a theater benefit, clothing, etc.; The cost of using the family car for charitable work at six cents a mile or actual cost of gas and oil; The cost and upkeep of uniforms worn while performing charitable services, Den Mother's, Civil Defense and Red Cross uniforms are examples of these; Out-of-pocket expenses such as postage, stationery, phone calls, donated foods, and also meals and lodging away from home while performing services to a recognized charity away from home.

"Most wives are very much involved with 90 per cent of the deductible items on federal tax returns," Bloch states. "Items such as medical, dental and drug expenses, interest on installment payments, and many other daily living expenses can, if properly reported on income tax returns, cut the family tax bill.

"It is important to keep accurate records and save all receipts to substantiate legitimate deductions."

April Begins Area Stitchery Workshop

A creative stitchery workshop for Appleton area girls and boys between the ages of 9 and 14 will be sponsored by Outagamie County, the University Extension.

Classes will meet from 3:30 to 5 p.m., Wednesdays beginning April 7 and extend for a period of three weeks in meeting room 2 of the court house annex. Instructor for the class will be Miss Carol Evans, 4-H home economist.

Students will be taught the basic stitches and how to design and make a simple wall hanging from their own materials.

Colonial Williamsburg To be Site of Wedding

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — This colonial capital, restored to its 18th century appearance mostly through funds provided by the Rockefeller's, is the setting today for the marriage of one of the bride's family.

Winthrop Paul Rockefeller 22, of Winrock, Ark., and Deborah Cluett Sage of New York, 20, planned to take their vows in an afternoon ceremony in historic Bruton Parish Church.

Expected to attend were four of the Rockefeller brothers, including the bridegroom's father, former Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas, who heads the board of Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

The list of 200 invited guests for the private ceremony also included Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, John D. Rockefeller III and Laurance Rockefeller.

Also expected was young Rockefeller's mother, Mrs. Barbara "Bobo" Sears Rockefeller, the daughter of a coal miner. She was the first wife of the former Arkansas chief executive. They were divorced in 1954.

Chosen to perform the ceremony were Dr. Cotesworth P. Lewis, rector of the church and the Rt. Rev. Nelson M. Burroughs of Chatham, Maine, retired Episcopal Bishop of Ohio and a relative of the bride's family.

Many of the guests were flown in prior to the wedding and stayed at various inns. A prewedding ball was held Sunday night at the Williamsburg Inn.

The guests were provided with a manservant or a maid if requested for their stay, which included a reception and a luncheon at the Williamsburg Conference Center after the wedding.

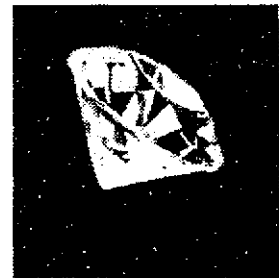

The young couple met last year while both were students at Oxford University in England.

Miss Sage is the daughter of Louis Davidson Sage of New Canaan, Conn., a public relations executive, and Mrs. Nicholas Chryssicopoulos of Athens, Greece.

Born in New York, she attended Chapin School there and later went to Lady Eden's and Queens Gate schools in England. She made her debut in 1968 in London.

A. R. Schuelke Dies Saturday

Rites Tuesday at Manawa for Noted Area Businessman

MANAWA — Funeral services for Arthur R. Schuelke, 64, route 1, prominent area businessman and farmer, will be held at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday at St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church here.

Schuelke died of an apparent heart attack Saturday while working at the Cedar Springs Resort which he opened here in 1964.

He bartered in Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Appleton and Weyauwega from 1927 to 1934 when he moved to the Town of Little Wolf and began farming. Shortly afterward he opened the Schuelke Insurance Agency here.

This was followed by an enterprise, A. R. Schuelke & Sons, Inc., which was comprised of the Manawa Insurance agency, the Modern Barber Shop in Weyauwega, the Cedar Springs Resort and the Symco Milling Co.

Schuelke also was president of the Central Mutual Hall and Cyclone Insurance Co. of Hortonville and vice president of the Bloomfield Mutual Insurance Co. In the 1930s he was state president of the American Dairy Association. He also was a past president of the Manawa Lions Club and St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Congregation.

Survivors include his widow, four sons and three sisters.

Visitation will be from 2 p.m. today at the Cline - Hanson - Dahlke Funeral Home here. Burial will be in the Little Wolf Cemetery.

Flood Plain Rule Explained at Fremont Meeting

FREMONT — Flood plain zoning of the village was presented to the public at an informational meeting Thursday evening.

Permitted uses of the three major divisions of zoning, the floodway, flood plain and flood fringe area were defined. The areas were depicted on maps which included elevations which vary with land contours. Near the intersection of Wolf River drive at the US Highway 10 bridge the elevation is considered to be 754 feet. The free board requirements designate that construction in the floodplain must have the first habitable floor one foot above the regional flood elevation.

The deadline of zoning in the village has been set by the Department of Natural Resources for March 31.

The meeting will reconvene at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the village hall when the comprehensive plan for the village will be explained to the public.

The public hearing is scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday March 25 at the village hall.

Athletic, Honor Banquet Date Set

HILBERT — The annual athletic and honor banquet, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce to honor outstanding high school students, has been scheduled for 7 p.m. April 14 at Heller's Hall, Brant.

Robert Thorne, vice principal of Neenah High School, will address the group. Athletic awards will be presented and the five high scholars will be recognized.

Clarence Hemauer is handling the arrangements for the Chamber.

Style Show Tuesday

Clintonville 'Easter Parade'

CLINTONVILLE — "Easter Parade" is the theme for the Clintonville Junior Woman's Club annual style show. It will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Senior High School gym.

Miss Mary Beth Kuester, home economist with Wisconsin Michigan Power Co., Appleton, will be the narrator.

Miss Linda Lou Marks, "Miss Appleton," will model and talk about her experiences at the Miss Wisconsin pageant.

Miss Kuester is a graduate of Clintonville Senior High School and the University of Wisconsin. School of Home Economics. She is a member of Omicron Nu and Phi Upsilon Omicron, honorary home economics sororities, the Appleton Altruism Club and the American Home Economics Association.

National Chairman She currently is serving a two-year term as national chairman of the Edison Electric Institute Home Service Committee. She recently presided over the committee's National Woman's Conference in Chicago.

Clintonville merchants have been planning for this style show for several months and local people will be modeling some of their fashions.

The Waupaca Fine Arts Festival presented Handel's famous "Messiah" Sunday in a performance featuring the 150-voice Community Chorus, a 50-member orchestra and four soloists, conducted

Chorus, Orchestra

'Messiah' at Waupaca Is A Stirring Performance

BY FERN SMITH

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUPACA — The bright hope and splendor of Easter's dawn came 20 days early Sunday in "The Messiah".

The work created 231 years ago by George Frederick Handel was performed by a 150-member community chorus, a 50-member orchestra, four soloists and conductor Gerald Knoepfl to stir 600 listeners.

The popular oratorio pervaded the concert hall with purity of note, clarity of message and new hope — two and one-half hours of enjoyment. It renewed belief:

"The voice of Him that crieth in the wilderness, tells of every valley that shall be exalted and every mountain and hill made low, the crooked straight and the rough places plain."

So wrote Handel in the prophecy and fulfillment of the Nativity.

"Behind the Lamb of God, He was despised and rejected, bore His griefs, was rebuked, cut off from the land, this King of glory — and death is swallowed up in victory."

Handel continues with the passion and the resurrection.

"Hallelujah, the omnipotent reigneth, the Lord has kept His word, now is Christ risen from the dead."

This is the promise of Handel, the resurrection of all mankind to the glory of God.

Tenor Justin Parrott set the mood of expectancy, and his beautiful voice carried the narrative with plaintive promise.

tion, "Why do the nations so furiously rage together, and why do the people imagine a vain thing?"

Depicting the man of sorrows who was acquainted with grief, Miss Barbara Griena, 21-year-old contralto and former student at Waupaca High School, sang, "He Was Despised and Rejected."

Warm and real was the message of Miss Susan Blumer, lyric soprano; especially beautiful was her interpretation of "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth."

The chorus, never better in its eight years of singing, showed its greatest versatility in "For Unto Us A Child Is Born." As it sang the popular "Hallelujah," with the audience standing in full response, it pulled out all stops, emptying itself of talent.

Concert mistress Margery V. Aber, took the bows for the orchestra, which responded with color and beauty just as a full symphony.

All of this put together by Conductor Gerald Knoepfl, who turned to the soloists, orchestra and chorus and commented, "It was great, I'm pleased."

The audience included music lovers from nine to 90, and interspersed with a number of professional musicians. To add meaning to my wholehearted response for the musicians, I had one, highly accomplished and respected, at my right hand. The musicians' musician said:

"As always, Gerry was very much in control. They love to sing and play for him. There was wonderful orchestra support, the tympani was excellent in "Hallelujah," and never have I heard such beautiful projection as Combs and Kay Schultz' trumpet in "The Trumpet Shall Sound."

"Miss Blumer's soprano voice is beautiful and her presentation flawless. There were ornaments in her "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" that I found quite different, I hope she will come again."

"But, oh, that chorus — excellent enunciation, immediate response — they sing it so beautifully, it should be an annual event."

"Sunday's concert was made possible by the hard work of many in the sponsoring organization and the orchestra for their rehearsal — 20 hours in rehearsal — but most of all, the people who came to listen. They were generous in their response and this is sheer joy for the artist."

In a heavily wooded area east of Chilton, there is a cedar tree that is left with the mark of a busy woodpecker. Here you can see the art of his work as the depth of the holes are evidence of his fast little beak. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Michael Batistest, 23, received a back injury and Gerald Nett, 23, suffered a left wrist and hand injury. All persons in the Batson car were from Fond du Lac.

Driver of the third vehicle involved was Elbert G. Wing-

Legislators' Support For Marquette Dental School Aid Is Evident

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — The willingness of the State Legislature to authorize the use of state funds for direct assistance of a financially troubled sectarian educational institution was forcefully displayed Thursday in an overwhelming vote of approval of an aid plea by the dental college of Marquette University, Milwaukee.

In an unexpectedly strong vote of 68 to 30, members of the legislature's lower house passed and sent to the Senate a bill that endorses the idea of such assistance. But it is couched in such terms as to force a test case before the state Supreme Court of its validity under the state constitution which contains a strict clause demanding the separation of church and state affairs.

However, it was reasonably clear from the Assembly's voting pattern, involving members of both the Democratic and Republican parties, that the measure will be approved also by the State Senate, and that if the Supreme Court rules in favor of a state contractual arrangement with Marquette, such funding for the subsidy of its dental college will begin.

Primary Concern

The Marquette University representatives were primarily concerned about a pending amendment that would have required divestment of the dental college and its incorporation as an independent institution under public control as a condition for state funding. Such an amendment had been accepted two years ago when the university asked for and received state assistance for the operation of its financially ailing medical college, a condition that the university and its medical alumni reportedly now regret. The old Marquette School of Medicine is now separately incorporated as a quasi-public Medical College of Wisconsin.

But Assembly Speaker Robert Huber quickly disposed of the amendment when he ruled it out of order without protest or appeal from the floor.

Burglars Take Small Change At Youth Center

CHILTON — About $80 in small change was taken from cash drawers, several pinball machines and a juke box at the youth center over the weekend.

According to City Policeman Garnett Peterson, entry into the building was gained by breaking a glass window in the south door of the building. Cash drawers on the pinball machine and juke box were pried and strewn about. No other damage was reported in the building.

The youth center was opened on Saturday evening until 11 p.m. and was not open to Sunday. The break-in was discovered shortly before 6 p.m. Sunday when a neighbor noticed a window to the door was broken and reported it to police. City police are investigating.

Delegates Picked For Badger State

NEW LONDON — The faculty of the New London Senior High School has selected the delegates and alternates for the 1971 Badger Boys and Badger Girls State programs.

Badger Boys delegates are James Haney, Randy Mathewson, and Thomas Sandertoot. The alternates are Michael Baehman and Paul Zimmer.

Joan Luedtke is the delegate for Badger Girls State. The alternate for the program is Kathleen Klatt.

The first vote of several showed the strong backing for the proposition, as a bipartisan roll call quickly rejected a motion to kill the measure.

New Facilities

Supporters explained that the supply of professional dentists is inadequate, that cost of the school is rising, that it sorely needs huge infusions of money for new equipment and that it may lose its accreditation as a professional school unless it provides better facilities. If it fails financially, or loses accreditation, the state will be forced to provide a public dental college at a cost of up to $30 million in plant and heavy staffing and equipment outlays. The Assembly was told that without state aid the Marquette college will die within five years.

The danger of loss of accreditation of the school at Marquette was cited by Rep. Earl McEsey, Fond du Lac Republican, who acted as floor leader during the debate and maneuvering on the bill.

The measure had the strategic lobbying support of the Wisconsin State Dental Society, consisting mostly of Marquette dental school alumni.

Backers of the measure confined their pleas to the prudence of avoiding the transfer of dental education costs to the financially troubled state government, and pointed to the precedents in other and more indirect assistance to private education.

The few opponents were vehement in their resistance.

'It's Wrong'

"You know it is wrong," challenged Rep. John Shabaz of Waukesha County, assistant GOP minority leader, warning that scores of other private institutions will demand state-funding under the Marquette precedent.

Like other opponents Rep. Norman Anderson of Madison, Democratic majority leader, said the bill would generate a flood of demands for aid from the non-public education interest. "When we get enough of these requests," he said angrily, "we'll come to our senses."

Rep. John Wilcox of Wautoma said he studied at Ripon, a private college, but would refuse to vote any state aid for it without some form of state control. But Rep. Herbert Grover of Shawano countered that the aid bill was merely a "little more" support of the kind represented by the grants of money that dental students may now claim from the state treasury under state law.

The measure proposes that the state contract with Marquette for the training of dentists, at the cost of $3,500 per year per student, which will cost several million dollars annually according to estimates cited in debate.

Concert Slated By MacDowell Chorus Saturday

CLINTONVILLE — The Appleton MacDowell Male Chorus will present a concert at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Washington Junior High School, New London, for the benefit of the Waupaca County Association for Retarded Children.

The appearance of this well-known men's chorus is being sponsored by Local Branch 5 of Aid Association for Lutherans and civic organizations. The money will be used for Day Care Centers for the mentally handicapped.

Tickets may be purchased in Clintonville from Mrs. Willis Gensler and Mrs. Clifford Rath.

Talk at Chamber Meeting

Warden Notes Calumet Marsh Plans

QUINNEY — The long-range outlook for a marsh in Calumet County, comparable to that at Horton, was described here by Richard Streng, Calumet County conservation warden, at a recent meeting of the Stockbridge Chamber of Commerce.

The areas referred to by Streng are the Killsnake and Brillion marsh projects.

Plans are being made, the warden said, for a dam near Potter, but it is uncertain when they will begin areas would be a satellite due to Gov. Patrick Lucey's austerity program.

The 6,200 acres of the Brillion Marsh are near Potter. The 9,000 acre Killsnake area is in the Town of Charlestown. Most of the land is privately owned, pheasants, and that Hungarian partridge are found in the county in "hunting numbers." With brush piles and things to eat, the cottontail rabbit will be around for a long time," he said.

Streng also mentioned that up to 600 whistling swans have been known to stop in the muskrat and "five kinds of Killsnake area. There are only about 30,000 of these rare birds left, he said.

He lauded the efforts put into bringing about Calumet County and High Cliff State Parks, referring to them as "the finest in the state." These projects were not at first readily accepted by the public.

"Educating the public to go along with the program is a big part of the project," Streng said, "it perpetuates the recreational sports we now have."

Several Mothers from the Black Creek area have volunteered to work in the primary school library on Wednesday afternoons. Left to right they are, seated, Mrs. Lester Shephardson and Mrs.

Waupaca School Board Revamps Class Offerings

BY FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUPACA — After six months of classroom observation, and evaluation by teachers, the administration, and teams from the Department of Public Instruction, the board of education has officially approved a number of curricular changes for grades 7 through 12.

The board's instructional committee, headed by Comm. Mrs. William Spiegler, with Comm. Gerald Anderson and Comm. Loy Montgomery carefully reviewed proposed changes with Supt. Len Brittelli and Principals Clarence Riddle, Robert Groshek and William Williams.

State Advice

The board followed the committee's recommendation in approving changes. At the elementary level, the major emphasis of concentration will be on improvement of reading and the language arts.

Supt. Brittelli told the board, "I agree wholeheartedly with the general observations and suggestions made after the visit of the Department of Public Instruction teams."

"It is unfortunate that the elementary school children are housed in so many attendance centers. This arrangement causes a number of problems which fall into the three major categories of instruction, administration, supervision and finance."

Students Face Problem

Among them are the following:

- It is difficult to administer and supervise effectively the total elementary program, when there are 10 elementary centers.

—This limits use of instructional materials and equipment use in many instances and to some extent a duplication.

—Special teachers are spending a good amount of time "on the road."

—The cost factor is notable in custodial and maintenance programs.

"Of course, we know that our facilities are limited, but in spite of this a number of individual classroom teachers, attempting to provide good educational experiences for elementary school children," he added, "Small group instruction, flexible seating arrangements, audio visual materials, stimulating creative-imaginative writing by the youngsters now occurring in some classrooms, should be happening in them all."

New Plan

Brittelli told the board every effort and consideration will be given to developing short and long-range plans for a more effective total school program for all grades, including a careful study of physical facilities to house improved instructional programs at all levels.

The state team proposed hiring an art specialist, but this will be deferred until next year. Changes in the business education department will include offering typewriting I classes the sophomore year. Note-taking and record keeping classes will be dropped. By moving up the typewriting offering, it will be possible for girls to prepare themselves for office occupations in capstone courses.

Pilot Program

"There were 21 recommendations in business education by the team from the Department of Public Instruction, including the capstone course, which would provide combining two hours, one for typewriting and one for shorthand; and a cooperative education program which will include on-the-job training," Brittelli said.

"What they have told us is, we are doing a good job for the boys but a poor job for the young women," he elaborated.

"Where we now have nine girls in shorthand and 11 in typing as seniors — we should have 20 to 25 girls in the clerical situation, and 25 in stenographic training, providing three sequential years of training, if they choose. The jobs are there and they need to be trained for them, if they are not going on to college."

A developmental reading program will be started in English classes. Every English classroom will have its own paperback library and a student will have a minimum of six weeks in oral communications and minimum of six weeks in writing.

Multi-Level Teaching

The English department reports it is possible that mini-courses and individualized instruction will be developed next year. English will continue to be taught on three levels: for the college bound, average and low-ability student.

In the science department, two credits in science will be required for graduation. Biology will be dropped as a required subject in the ninth grade and offered as an elective in grades 9, 10, 11 and 12.

Physics, chemistry, environmental resources, earth science and applied science will be offered as electives.

The approved mathematics curriculum changes will be the offering of general mathematics as an elective, with ninth grade students guided into either general mathematics classes or algebra in the freshman year. Consumer mathematics will be offered as an elective in the 11th and 12th grades. One year as an elective will be required for graduation.

Priorities in Math

"In mathematics there has been a tendency to treat all students alike and they have a different maturation period, so students. United States history this doesn't make sense," Brittelli observed. "One child may be ready at ninth grade for mester of political science and algebra, one may never be one semester of senior seminar ready. Under the new program teachers will be given a choice to do something with youngsters should be with a math problem. I would prefer a good general math to senior level. The new program two years of algebra in which would provide three required about one-twelfth of the students in general math, the required and two elective sub-balance in algebra and the subjects for juniors and one requirement should be about equal." ed and three elective subjects studies courses has been approved over the next two years. In 1971 and 72, 9th grade world history will be an elective, and United States history will be required of all 10th and 11th grade students.

One semester of political science and one semester of senior seminar will be required for all seniors; social problems will be dropped and geography, of mathematics will be required for graduation.

In 1972-73 world history will be reintroduced as an elective; science and one semester of one semester of sociology will be required for all 11th grade students. United States history will be required of all 10th grade students and one semester of senior seminar will be required of all seniors. The superintendent said there to do something with youngsters should be with a math problem. I would prefer a good general math to senior level. The new program two years of algebra in which would provide three required about one-twelfth of the students in general math, the required and two elective sub-balance in algebra and the subjects for juniors and one requirement should be about equal." ed and three elective subjects

Church Women Tour WLIH-FM

NEW LONDON — Members of the Catholic Women's Study Club toured WLIH-FM, at their regular meeting, last week.

In the tour, conducted by Dale Sternhagen, the women were shown the production facilities, various departments, offices, transmitter, control room, and news areas.

An explanation was given on how news is gathered and produced, and how commercials are produced. They also learned about FCC regulation of stations and the methods a station uses to log a day's activities.

Following the program a social was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Bernegger. Father George Beth was a guest of the women.

The social committee consisted of Mrs. George Groher, chairman; Mrs. Ben Huzzar, Mrs. Louis Meshnick, and Miss Irene Poeple.

Auxiliary Gets New Members

American Legion Women Initiate 6 At Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — Six new members were initiated Thursday evening at the meeting of the American Legion Post Auxiliary at the Veterans Memorial Building.

Plans were made for the annual party on March 30 at the Veterans Home at King. The junior district conference will be April 17 at Poysippi and the senior district conference will be April 24 at Wisconsin Rapids. Discussion was held relative to the 10th annual county government Day March 30 at the Waupaca County Courthouse. A contribution was made to help transport students to Waupaca. Again this year the auxiliary is helping to sponsor a delegate to Badger Girls' State. It is cooperating with the Clintonville branch of the American Association of University Women, the Woman's Club and Junior Woman's Club.

The delegate will be Sue Donaldson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Donaldson, and the alternate is Vickie Kafka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kafka.

The committee for the social hour includes Mrs. William Elliott, chairman; Mrs. Len Marser, Mrs. Casmere Mijal and Mrs. Owen Tilleson.

Fremont Voters to Name Village President, Trustees

FREMONT — Harold Jack Abraham, village president since 1967, resigned because of ill health, has been nominated for re-election at the April election. He is opposed by caucus nominee Herbert Reickmann Jr., for the post.

Abraham also was a caucus nominee but withdrew from the race. Papers were circulated and presented to Ronald Abbott, and presented to Ronald Abbott, Friday petitioning officially combined but during past years the same person has

Legislature Is 'Closer Than Ever' to Passing Parochial Aid

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A campaigner for state aid to private schooling says he thinks the Wisconsin legislature is closer than ever to adopting subsidies for families with children attending parochial schools.

But Sen. Raymond F. Heinen, a Marshfield Republican, said he is less certain which of two routes will be taken in efforts to get a court ruling favorable to the private schools wishes.

Heinen has submitted a bill which requests a state payment of up to $135 to the parents of any student in a private school. It is estimated his bill would cost the state $34 million in the 1971-73 biennium.

Impotence, Birth Defects Tied to Use of Marijuana

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Smoking marijuana may cause sexual impotence, says the president-elect of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Wesler W. Hall of Reno also said that birth defects are more common in children whose mothers smoke marijuana.

Hall, referring to an AMA study on drugs and mental health which will be released in June, said recently that researchers determined that young men who smoke marijuana have "a little earlier impotence in their sexual drives."

"We know marijuana is a dangerous drug, but we don't know how dangerous," Hall said at a seminar sponsored by the American College of Surgeons.

Rule on Female Pages Defended

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The South Carolina Senate, answering a federal court suit, says hiring female pages would tend to reduce the dignity of the Senate and leave senators open to accusations of moral impropriety.

The suit was filed by Vicki Eslinger, a University of South Carolina law student who charged she was denied employment as a Senate page solely because of her sex.

A hearing is scheduled March 25.

The Senate answer was filed recently by Asst. Atty. Gen. Michael W. Tighe. It said pages are dispatched day and night to hotel and motel rooms of senators.

Black Woman Runs For Yale Corporation

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Marian Wright Edelman has become the first woman to be nominated for election to the Yale University board of trustees.

Mrs. Edelman is a black civil rights lawyer who graduated in 1963 from Yale Law School. She is a former director of an NAACP legal defense fund in Mississippi and now works in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Edelman will compete against four men for one of six Alumni Fellow positions on the board, which is officially called the Yale Corporation. The election by alumni will be held in the spring. The term is six years.

Joan Rivers Set For Play Debut

McDowell Chorus Slated For New London Benefit

NEW LONDON — Music will fill the Washington Junior High School auditorium Saturday evening for the benefit of the Waupaca County Association for Retarded Children.

The famed McDowell Male Chorus from Appleton will present the concert.

The appearance of the chorus is sponsored by the local branch of the Aid Association for Lutherans as a part of its fraternal program. Officials said it is hoped the benefit will raise enough money to support the New London center so that it can expand both its facilities

Portage County Post Is Filled

AMHERST — Herbert Allen has been appointed to fill the Portage County Board seat vacated by the recent death of Henry Swenson.

The appointment was made by Portage County Board chairman Harold Mehne, on recommendation of the town and village boards in the district and confirmed by the county board. The district includes the Town of Amherst, Villages of Amherst, Amherst Junction and Nelsonville.

Currently Allen is assessor of the town of Amherst and is also filling in as clerk for Peter Mrchinski, who has been ill. He is a candidate for clerk at the April election.

Expiration for the county board seat, occupied by Allen, will be in 1972.

Each solicitor will contact from 8 to 16 householders in his area, according to a plan formulated by last year's committee. The drive is scheduled to start Wednesday and close on April 3. Donors may contribute to listed charities of their choice or add others in which they are interested.

The committee this year is composed of Mrs. Louis Rank, chairman, Mrs. St. Garrow, and Mrs. S. A. Huebner.

BOUND FOR BOCA RATON!

James R. Watters

During 1970, this Woodmen Accident and Life District Manager qualified for attendance at the Company's annual LEADING PRODUCERS' SEMINAR which will be held in beautiful Boca Raton, Florida. Attendance at this important event is limited to the select group of District Managers who have exceeded a specific goal in the sale of life, health and group insurance protection.

Through advanced instruction, the Seminar will enable those who attend to increase their sales and service capabilities — thus providing a wider scope of financial security for many individuals, families and businesses.

The effort this District Manager put forth to qualify for the Leading Producers' Seminar deserves a special tribute, so won't you join us in congratulating

Byrnes' Tax Sharing Formula

Rep. John Byrnes' proposal for a better sharing of tax resources among levels of government rather than a federal sharing of tax revenues with the states and local governments provides a thought-stimulating choice for which the nation should receive full details to enable the proper decision. Hopefully, Byrnes' rank as top Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee will help bring about a committee hearing on President Nixon's plan for revenue sharing and on the alternatives, which was denied the nation in the past session of Congress.

The split between the President and one of his top congressional lieutenants in the taxation field has been widely heralded. First, it is necessary to document that on which they do not disagree.

In his speech last week to the American Bankers Association, Byrnes said he and the President share the objective of strengthening local government and are in complete agreement on two-thirds of what the President has proposed. This is the $10 billion a year grouping of federal aid programs, which are approaching the point of defying description and totaling, into bloc grants to be distributed to the state and local government on the basis of broad purposes.

The objective here is to cut through delaying red tape and nit-picking federal supervision to enable states and municipalities to use federal aids better through their knowledge of local conditions. Since Rep. Wilbur Mills, Democratic chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, agrees with this reform, the chances for this part of Mr. Nixon's plan would appear to be good.

What the President and Byrnes do not agree on is the other third of the administration proposal — the idea of a federal sharing of $5 billion a year with the states and local government under a formula based on need, as measured by population, and local and state effort, as measured by the level of taxation. On this subject, Byrnes stands with Mills in saying, "We should not make available to the states and localities, to be spent as they see fit, funds they have not raised, thus encouraging irresponsibility."

The other side of this argument is that the Nixon formula does, in fact, reward those states and local governments — as those in Wisconsin — which are trying hardest to solve problems as indicated by the level of their taxation and that substitute plans would not get the money where it is needed if states and local governments still refused to act.

The Byrnes alternative of a sharing of tax resources would get at the worry of raising taxes where they are spent by reducing federal taxation and transferring this revenue - raising ability. Byrnes calls for a 20 per cent federal income tax credit for state and local income taxes paid in addition to the existing deduction for state income taxes in the process of figuring federal returns. He also would reinstate the state tax credit of the 1920's for a deduction from federal estate taxes. At the start, this could provide states and municipalities with $3 billion a year more in tax-raising potential.

The crunch in both the Byrnes alternative and in the Nixon revenue sharing plan will come when the Ways and Means Committee faces a hard fact that Byrnes repeatedly has stated. Right now, the federal government has nothing to share except a budget deficit.

If federal revenue is to be reduced in the total suggested by Byrnes, it follows that there must be spending reductions in the same amount unless an increasing federal deficit is now regarded as automatic. The Nixon proposal also is supposed to be based on a full employment budget and is not supposed to be just another new program with a potential to add to the federal debt.

The Byrnes alternative, thus, appears to offer the best assurance that this would not be the case. Whether the troubled state and local governments have time to wait for Washington to figure out ways to balance the budget is quite another thing.

State's Poor Ranking in Highway Safety

In view of the subject having been one of major concern for the past two legislative sessions, there will be a combination of disbelief and disappointment in the report of the federal Department of Transportation that Wisconsin ranks 37th among the states in doing something about highway safety.

The ranking is not quite as bad as it sounds. The 13 states ranked below Wisconsin are judged to have much more serious shortcomings, and the states ranked above Wisconsin earned their places by acting in only a few more fields. Yet, the federal point by point examination should become a document on which the thoughtful Wisconsin resident should draw in urging his state representatives to see to it that the state catches up in a field which affects everyone so intimately.

The Department of Transportation summary weighed accomplishments by new state laws in driver licensing and re-examination, in driver education, in accident record keeping, in highway patrolling and emergency medical services, in vehicle inspection, and in getting drunken drivers off the roads.

It is in the last two categories that Wisconsin needs to act. As we have frequently pointed out, the compromise implied consent law enacted by the past legislative session falls short of what it should be — and this has been confirmed by monthly state reports. The law retained the definition of being legally drunk as having .15 per cent of alcohol in the blood as opposed to the federal recommendation of .10 per cent, a level agreed to by such authorities as the American Medical Association.

In the field of vehicle examination, the legislature was able to produce only a spot-check program. The estimate is that this reaches only about 90,000 vehicles a year out of the nearly two million vehicles on Wisconsin highways.

The problem, of course, is basically one of cost. One idea is to have state-licensed private garages perform inspections, but the legislature worried that there could be cheating in the form of repairs ordered to be necessary at some such private businesses which could not resist temptation. The other plan would be for state-operated inspection stations or those run by local or county authorities under uniform state standards and supervision.

The legislature should include as its business for this session both a strengthening of the implied consent law and deciding on a means for statewide vehicle inspection. Much more is involved than the state's standing in the next federal report.

The Phoenix Society gave, as they always have done, a good, high toned public exhibition on the evening of March 24.

The College Chapel was filled at an early hour with a large and intelligent audience. What was particularly noticeable was that the participants were promptly on hand, and the exercises began early.

The exhibition was a success. It gives us great pleasure to record it as such, instead of a sell on the public.

Abortion: The Crunch

Opponents Today Have Moral But Not Political Leadership

BY WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, Jr.

We read now in the national press that so-called abortion referral services are becoming so widespread as to make it possible to say that, in the United States, the day has arrived when abortion is for all intents and purposes universally available. Indeed, the fetidifiers' most prominent lobby nowadays directs its efforts not at universalizing abortion clinics, but in making them free. Why should you have to pay to kill a fetus? Have a heart.

The Resistance is for the most part but by no means universally Catholic. Professor Will Herberg, a prominent Jewish sociologist and theologian, serenely disposes (in a recent issue of "National Review") of the argument that a pluralist society ought to permit abortion to those who desire abortion. Popular opinion, he reminds us, does not define moral truth, an observation easy to confirm emotionally by asking oneself: if all German Aryans endorsed Hitler's decision to exterminate the Jews, would a morality be thus authorized which permitted — nay, by democratic dogma, required — genocide?

Professor Herberg writes, "The distinction between new life in its intra-uterine existence just before delivery and the same new life in its extra-uterine existence just after delivery is something that even the subtlest metaphysician would find it hard to explain. If a woman says she has a right to destroy innocent human life because it is 'part' of her body (in what sense is the fetus part of her body?) then is not a similar right operative against the just-born infant as 'part' of the family? This is exactly the logic of Greek antifundic and of the Roman 'patria potestas.' It is a logic that is inescapable."

What To Do? What to do about it? "For those who want to have some influence on the course of events, it is necessary, while preserving unimpaired their uncompromising opposition to taking innocent human life, to begin from where we are." He calls for organizing "to slow up the movement for unrestricted abortion and gain some concessions, no matter how small, that would stem the drive for feticide freedom."

In sharp contrast is the position arrived at by the editors of "Triumph" magazine, a small militant Catholic monthly which in the current issue declares war on the United States. "For the Christian to be a patriot will increasingly require beliefs and acts that will be taken by the official guardians of our pieties as directly anti-patriotic. It is by permission of the institutions of the American state that abortion has been made universally available in the United States; it is the might and power of those same institutions that stand in the way of those who would protect innocent life, who would play the new game. All right, then; let the game begin."

The position of "Triumph" editors is that debate no longer will do. They reason: 1) that abortion is murder; 2) that the intellectual demonstration of the fact has been made, and that the reiteration of it is to commit redundancy while Rome burns; 3) that it is only left to interpose. "No serious moral distinction," a "Triumph" associate writes, "(can be made) between Hitler's final solution of the Jewish problem and our present society's final solution of the pregnancy problem. And," the magazine concludes, "if it is true that German Christians were morally obligated to try, somehow, to interpose themselves between Hitler and the Jews, are not American Christians under similar obligation?"

"Anything Goes" The editors are at that point, and necessarily so, woolly. "There can be no indiscriminate violence." Notice that carefully, please. And a second prohibition: "In order to reduce abortion, one may not propose a remedy that is itself morally impermissible," e.g. a "wider dispensation of contraceptives." Beyond that, as they put it, "anything goes." It is such analyses that discredit the anti-abortion position, in part because of the uncalibrated distinctions. In part because of the bombastic summons to futility (if American Catholics paralleled the career of "Triumph" magazine, they would be reduced to an equivalent ineffectuality.

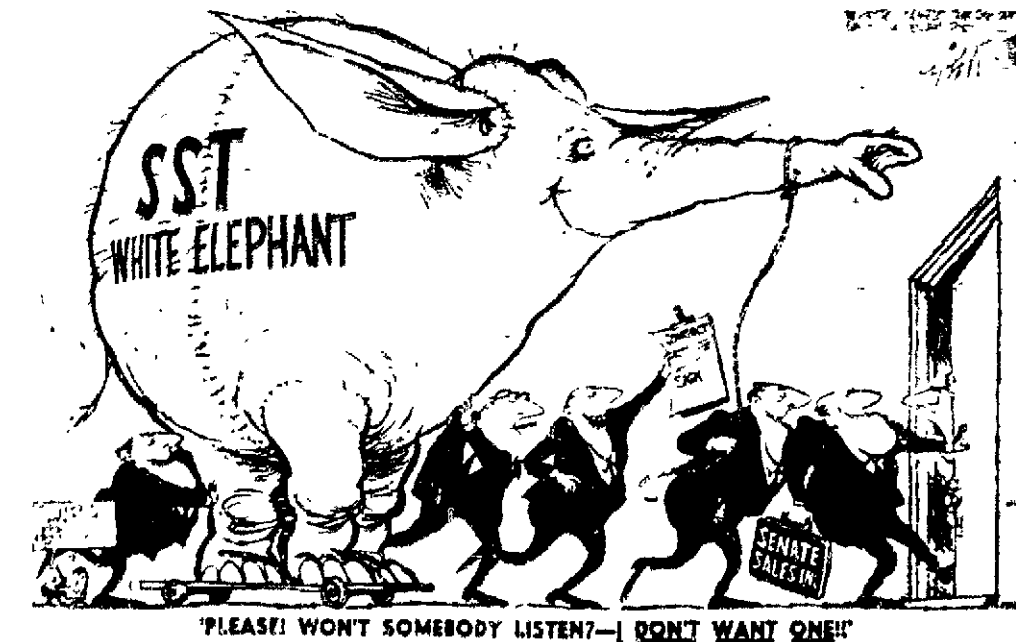

But that leaves the conscientious Christian and Jew (whose orthodox spokesmen are equally opposed to abortion) without a program, beyond Will Herberg's call for dropping sand in the abortionists' juggernaut. The American Bishops have provided moral leadership, but absolutely no political leadership. It is this that is needed.

Wisconsin Report

Republicans Can Now Play the Little Game In Legislative Debate

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Because it is organized on party lines, there is gamesmanship in the state legislature that is unique among legislative bodies in Wisconsin.

It is an exercise indulged by the party that is in the minority. There are no written rules. It is a matter of mutual practice and instinct, much as is the discovery that the cat when tossed into the water can swim when circumstances make that desirable.

The game has no name. But the rules are simple and clearly understood. The party that loses the election — now the Republican party in the Assembly, to illustrate — takes a couple of hours now and again to taunt and bait and deride the majority for promises made in the previous campaign season that are ignored or recognized as difficult to fulfill after the swearing-in.

Banged Gavel Early The other morning in the Assembly there was an unusually early convening. The speaker banged his gavel at 9 a.m., which brought in some visibly sleepy-eyed representatives. The idea was to make good on delayed calendars of several earlier days. But the Republicans put into play a carefully prepared plan to bait the Democratic majority on school financing and property tax relief.

The lead player in the little farce that ensued was Rep. Joe Tegorog of Shullsburg, an amiable young farmer and a member of the decimated Republican bloc. With leisurely good humor he read off a long list of figures of dollar gains for counties and school districts and other subdivisions that would result from some of the property tax relief and school aid bills sponsored by Republicans.

With considerable wit, he read from the campaign publicity of many of the Democrats in the chamber relating what they would do about such matters in the event of their election. He contrasted those assurances with the modest provisions of the Democratic administration's state budget, and the insistence of the Democratic majority in voting down Republican bills that purported to validate those proffered benefits.

Was Boring Performance For the men at the press tables it was a boring performance, unworthy of reporting. It signified nothing. It was a form of amusement — as many of the Democrats acknowledged by their chuckles. Two years ago and in many other sessions in which the Republicans ruled, Democrats were using the same tactics, making the same speeches, earning the same wry smiles from the Republican side of the aisle. "You're a liar," one side maintains.

"You're another," the opposition side will reply. For most persons it is a great bore.

Yet, the reflective person who is forced to endure such puerilities in the name of political discussion may conclude that the performance has a meaning. Implicit in this game and regular reversal of the roles with the changing fortunes of the ballot box competition is an acknowledgment that parties deceive. Implicit is the idea that no party — at least in these times — is truly convinced that it can deliver what it promises.

Politicians appeal to rival and fluid constituencies. It is a shifting, unreliable, often ambivalent mix which causes the uncertainty of the partisan tides. The average person likes to be told what he wants to hear — even if his inner good sense tells him it is not quite credible.

Sensing that, the candidate stands for legislation that he knows in his heart he cannot deliver. Who is culpable, the politician who takes turns being baited and baiting, or the voter who so easily responds to campaign romancing?

Hitch-Hiking Law Is Invasion of Freedom

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

Due to both the significance and the absurdity of the case, I find it hard to resist comment on a recent item in The Post-Crescent. According to the article, a Neenah youth was arrested and fined $58.50 on the charge of hitch hiking. Not only is this an inappropriately high fine, but it involves an archaic law dealing with a trivial and commonplace occurrence. Anyone who frequently hitches will agree to its convenience and often its necessity, and will probably find it difficult to understand the illegality behind the action.

Like everything else, including driving on the highway in one's own car, hitch-hiking can be dangerous. It can be time consuming, frustrating, and annoying. But most important, it is a personal freedom and it is none of the government's business whether a person chooses to hitch-hike, or a driver decides to pick up a rider. The law of the land is supposedly designed to protect the innocent from the guilty and the weak from the strong. Further than this, it is simply impinging on a person's freedom.

It's not my purpose to suggest that maybe the friendly officer's time could be better spent in eliminating the ubiquity of drunk drivers, in apprehending the many speeders, or perhaps even in enforcing safety requirements on automobiles. These though, and not the everyday hitch-hiker, are the dangers that lead to problems on the highways. Possibly it's time to repeal an outdated law that does nothing to protect our citizens, or in fact even to control hitch-hiking, but merely persecutes an arbitrary few who are simply minding their own business.

There Are Dangers in City Growing Into Metropolis

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

As a former Appletonian I hope that I may presume on taking the liberty to make a couple of comments pertinent to the city.

I note that Appleton is in the process of proposed annexations and further growth. And this is good because it will mean more industry moving in and that means more jobs, more people and an improved tax base.

But I hope that in the far distant future Appleton does not become a great metropolis. Because when a city becomes very large a point is reached where the value received for each tax dollar decreases. Somehow at this point inefficiency creeps in.

possibility of four dangers: 1—Formation of ghettos 2—Poor garbage and trash collection 3—Poorly maintained streets 4—And the most deadly of city predators — the three pronged debilitator of crooked politicians, bought off law enforcement and the criminal element.

I am sure that some readers will look with askance on the fourth one and to them I would recommend a book available at the Appleton Public Library. It is called "Captive City" — "A City in Chains" and is written by Ovid Denarin. He assured that the majority who read this will ask themselves, "How Can This Be?"

Kissing Your Dog Is Not Good Habit

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain the effects good and bad of kissing dogs on the mouth. Is it true that dogs carry fewer germs in the mouth than humans? My wife claims so. Kindly print some facts on this. — T. M.

I don't know how many dog kissers there are, but there are some — my mail tells me so. Effects, good and bad? Well, it's true that bacterial and other germ counts are lower in dogs' mouths, but that's a far cry, a very far cry, from saying there aren't any.

Various diseases can be transmitted from animals to humans. These are called zoonoses (zoh-ON-oh-seez). More than a hundred of them have been identified, but not all involve dogs, of course. There are diseases that can be transmitted by cattle, cats, rodents, rabbits and other creatures.

So sticking just to dogs, transmittable disorders range from contact with saliva, skin and excreta (Some folks can be allergic to animals, too). Other disorders involve bacteria, viruses, parasites. For example, the latter dogs can have a parasite called the heart worm, and this has been found in human lungs. Salmonella — a cause of "food poisoning" — can be transmitted by dogs. And other conditions. Now in actuality, transmission of diseases from animals to man is not particularly common, but it can happen, and it does happen, and so far as I'm concerned, I'd just as soon not take any needless chances. So I personally do not kiss dogs on the mouth.

Dr. Thosteson

So far as that goes, I don't kiss 'em anywhere I'm willing to stick to just patting them. As to the benefits of kissing dogs on the mouth — I'm afraid I just don't know any. And I seriously doubt if the dog will feel rejected or suffer any emotional trauma by being deprived of kisses.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If you had been taking eight aspirin a day for three years and then read an article saying that a surgeon in Chicago said that for an more than four a week was example of the latter dogs can be dangerous in fact caused bleed- have a parasite called the heart worm, and this has been found in human lungs. I have rheumatoid arthritis and found aspirin a most helpful drug. — V. U.

My reaction? I'd wonder why it seemed necessary to repeat information which has been known for so long already.

It is true that aspirin can be irritating to the stomach and its related joint diseases as well as outlining effective treatments and medications. For a

And I'd keep right on taking my aspirin, with the knowledge that if it was causing any bleeding at all, it would be a small enough amount to do me far less harm than the good it does.

Hearing Set on Sewage Plan

SHERWOOD — A hearing will be scheduled in Chilton by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to hear testimony regarding the type of sewage system for the Village of Sherwood, High Cliff State Park and High Cliff Village. So far, no date has been set.

Possibility of an aerated lagoon has been investigated, and Sherwood, and the High Cliff development referred to as High Cliff Village, have engineer's plans for municipal sewage plants.

In response to a communication from the State Planning Bureau, the Village of Sherwood, at a recent meeting, proposed to build a sewer and water system for the village. It is sized to allow for High Cliff, the village and High Cliff State Park, with the sewage to pass through the system to the waste water treatment plant. The plan is large enough for the three communities. Land has been purchased.

Cost of the collection system, was estimated at $350,000; the waste water treatment plant at $340,000 and the water system at $290,000.

File Application
Application has been filed by the village for funds. It is proposed to fund the project through federal water pollution control administration; Farmers Home Administration; Farmers Home Administration and state ORAP funds.

The DNR has on several occasions urged that there be one system for the three areas, which are adjacent.

A recent meeting was held with officials of High Cliff sanitary district, High Cliff Park, the village board, County Planner Roland Tonn and J. Roger Miller and Associates of Sheboygan, who have been engaged to prepare a comprehensive water and sewage plan for Calumet County. A preliminary report was sent to all communities scheduled in Chilton by the ties.

From comments made by High Cliff sanitary district officials and the village, the reports do not conform with local plans now being made. The meeting was called so differences can be resolved and the comprehensive plan conform with local planning in order to be eligible for grants and aids.

Other Business

In other village business the board set $2.50 a call payment for the constable, who will file a complaint form and pay voucher for each call. His expense also will be paid. The constable was unable to attend the meeting to discuss his salary and was told officials he would alude by their decisions.

Since the village was incorporated in 1968 all officials have served without pay. Pay schedules for all officers were adopted recently with the exception of the constable, pending a meeting with him.

Assessor Anthony Mueller reported that Robert Vosen, assessment supervisor was working in the locality, as the office was revaluating all property in Calumet County. Mueller said that Vosen stated a representative of his office would be meeting with village officials.

President Clarence Zahringer, delegate to Calumet County Civic Association meeting, reported George Hostettler, Stockbridge is the new president. He also reported that the COCA was attempting to secure doctors for Calumet County.

Panel Urges Change for State Fair

Livestock Portion Would be Moved to Site in Arlington

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The state Employment Relations Commission expects a significant increase in demands on its arbitration and mediation services in the next biennium because of the state of the economy and changed situations in public education.

Morris Slavney, chairman of the commission, told the legislature's joint finance committee last week that the commission expects to be called in more frequently in disputes regarding layoffs resulting from the economic slowdown and in school district collective bargaining.

"Of the 400 plus school districts in the state," Slavney said, "only 30 have reached collective bargaining agreements for the next school year."

He said the commission expects to be involved in many more disputes during the spring and summer as a result of the apparent difficulty in reaching agreements between school boards and teacher associations.

In addition to the school disputes, Slavney said the service must expect disputes over employment layoffs because of the economy. During every other recession, he said, disputes have resulted from cutbacks in employment. He said the federal mediation and conciliation service has had a consistent increase in its case load and the same trend can be expected in the state service.

Slavney opposed the governor's recommendation that a request for an additional mediator for the next biennium be denied.

Constant Work

Slavney told the committee that the other commissioners recently have been working in some instances around the clock on disputes involving the Milwaukee School Board, the West Milwaukee and West Allis teachers' strike and the Milwaukee police and fire department contracts. In addition to some shifts of 24 hours or more, he said, the commissioners have worked up to 10 days with no time in the home office where they are expected to be working.

Commissioner Zel Rice said the heavy work load was likely to reduce the effectiveness of the mediation done. "I don't think we mediate well under those circumstances," he said. Rice also told the finance committee that he does not believe the staff mediators are paid well enough to make demands such as the recent schedules on them, which is why the commissioners also have participated in mediation and arbitration.

"We will continue to be hampered if we don't have an additional mediator," Slavney told the committee.

Labor Department Records Needed Before Budget OK

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The State Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations has been asked by members of the joint finance committee to produce records showing all manpower development programs operating in the state and the effectiveness of each before the committee approves its budget for the programs.

"There is an enormous amount of duplication and redundancy," Rep. Dennis Conto, D-Milwaukee, said of the proposed manpower development programs. There are five programs, he said, that are not sources of funds for manpower development and the effectiveness of each is not evaluated and the areas of overlap determined before the committee recommends a budget for the division, he said.

The major state manpower development program is the Work Incentive Program (WIN) that is partially federally funded and partially funded by the counties. The program that has been proven successful in removing persons from dependence on public assistance is recommended by the governor to be funded by the state rather than the local areas so that all parts of the state may participate.

While accepting the reports of the successes in the WIN programs, the committee was not ready to commit state funds to development and the variety of programs until it is clear that the money is not spread in so many directions that a large per cent is devoted to management of diverse programs.

Police and Fire Beat

Burglars took $4.50 in cash and change in a weekend break-in at St. Thomas More School, 1810 N. McDonald St., Appleton police learned Sunday afternoon. A cabinet in the sacristy had been pried open, but the money was taken from the school office. Detectives found no sign of forced entry.

George T. Wells, 47, 960 Grove St., Menasha, was bumped on the leg Sunday night when his car collided with another auto at Memorial Drive and Badger Avenue. Police said the other driver was Mary K. Hietpas, 19, 2903 E. Northland Ave., Appleton. The mishap occurred while Wells attempted a left turn off Memorial onto Badger and Miss Hietpas traveled south on Memorial.

Leonard Sturm, 38, 519 S. Bounds St., was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital shortly after midnight Sunday after he fainted just after entering a W. Second Street tavern. The Appleton Fire Department rescue squad made the run.

The Appleton Fire Department rescue squad took Margaret Kobiske, 27, 1617 W. Winnebago St., to Appleton Memorial Hospital at 5:46 a.m. today when she passed out at home.

Four Appleton Fire Department units Sunday night went to the Ronald Theyel home, 2507 S. Jackson St., when a motor on the furnace malfunctioned.

KIMBERLY — Fire which broke out in storage boxes on a heater in the garage at the Norbert Kaminski residence, 310 W. Third St., led to a run by volunteer firemen about 6:30 p.m. Friday. Minor scorching of interior walls was noted, according to Fire Chief William Van Hout.

KAUKAUNA — The theft of about $125 in change from the cupboards of his home was reported to police Friday by John Dettl, 1809 Sullivan Ave. Dettl told police that the theft probably took place about a week ago when no one was home and entry could have been made by using a spare key hidden in his garage as no sign of forced entry was noted.

Green Bay Man Killed in Crash

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A weekend collision in Racine County raised Wisconsin's 1971 highway fatality figure to 126 today compared with 179 on the same date a year ago.

Frank Heiser, 17, of Green Bay died Sunday of injuries received March 11 when his car hit a parked truck in Green Bay.

Gordon L. Topper, 33, of Racine died Saturday in a two-car crash at a Racine County highway intersection.

Kimberly Kiwanians Will Hear Debaters

KIMBERLY — Members of the Kimberly High School debate squad will present a program and be guests at a dinner meeting of the Kiwanis Club at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday at the Darboy Club.

Plans will be discussed for a dinner at which high school athletes participating in winter sports programs will be honored.

Appleton YMCA to Offer Sex-Education

Father-son and mother-daughter health and sex education programs have been planned by the Appleton YMCA, beginning March 29.

Sponsoring organizations are the Appleton Y's Men's and the Y's Menettes.

The health education program is for boys in seventh and eighth grades and their fathers. The separate but similar program is set for 11- and 12-year-old and mature 10-year-old girls and their mothers. Both will be from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. March 29, April 5, 19 and 26.

The four sessions for boys will deal with the topics: "How and Why They Grow," "Sons Will Become Fathers," "Mental Health Aspects," and "Attitudes and Values."

The girls' sessions will begin with an introduction for mothers only, followed by "Childhood to Womanhood," "It's a Two-Sex World," and "Christian Attitudes and Responsibilities."

Resource leaders will be Dr. and Mrs. James Veum, Dr. John Harris, Mrs. William Dafoe, and Keith Brutlag, director of Christian education for Faith Lutheran Church.

Enrollment is limited. Course fee is $1.50 for members and $4 for nonmembers. Registrations are accepted at the main desk by phone.

Plan Mardi Gras And Talent Show

LITTLE CHUTE — A mardi gras and a talent show will highlight activities at Little Chute High School this week.

The Girls Athletic Association will sponsor a talent show at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Featured will be demonstrations on the balance beam, the uneven bars, the rings, trampoline, mini-tramp and tumbling.

There also will be singing, and pantomime.

The mardi gras will be from 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the gym and commons.

There will be 16 games with prizes, a food booth, novelty booth, door prizes and a bake sale. Tickets will be sold in advance and at the door for a nickel or 22 for $1.

Proceeds will help defray the expenses of publishing a year book. The event is open to the public.

Army Medal Given To Kaukauna Soldier

Army Pfc. Paul L. Hennes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo A. Hennes, 304 W. Eighth St., Kaukauna, was recently presented with the Army Commendation Medal near Chu Lai, Vietnam.

The decoration was awarded for meritorious service while Hennes was assigned as a mortarman with Company D, 1st Battalion, 46th Infantry of the Americal Division's 196th Infantry Brigade. He is a graduate of Kaukauna High School.

Airman Steven B. Warde, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Warde, 1532 E. Gunn St., Appleton, has completed basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., and has been assigned to Lowry AFB, Colo. for training in the supply field.

He is a 1970 graduate of Appleton High School-West.

Seaman Steven R. Schabo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Schabo, route 2, Appleton, recently crossed the equator while serving aboard the USS Starsfield, a destroyer based at Mayport, Fla.

Each member of the crew, who had not previously crossed the equator was designated a "shellback" during a traditional ceremony that has been celebrated by mariners for centuries.

Airman Rodney M. Cotter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin R. Cotter, 412 W. Seventh St., Kaukauna, has completed a course for U.S. Air Force aircraft electricians at Chanute AFB, Ill.

Cotter, who is a 1968 graduate of Kaukauna High School and attended Kenosha Technical Institute, was trained to inspect and repair aircraft electrical systems.

Airman Gregory J. Burton, son of Norton J. Burton, 2609 N. Owassia St., Appleton, has been assigned for aircraft maintenance training at Sheppard AFB, Tex.

Burton, who graduated from Whitefish Bay High School in 1970, completed his basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex.

U.S. Navy PO 2.C. Paul M. Ehrlicke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merton P. Ehrlicke, 1501 Taft Ave., Appleton, is serving aboard the USS Charleston, which is transporting equipment to Diego Garcia Island in the Chagos Archipelago in the Indian Ocean for a new communications site.

After the cruise to the new site, the ship is scheduled to sail the five oceans on a 25,000-mile cruise around the world by way of the Pacific and the Panama Canal.

Ehrlicke is married to the former Cindy A. Smith, 1744 N. Oneida St., Appleton.

Airman Richard M. Grossman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Grossman, 123 E. Byrd St., Appleton, has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex.

U.S. Navy Airman Eric C. Derscheid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent K. Derscheid, 1112 W. Parkway Blvd., Appleton, has been assigned to the 30th Air Antisubmarine Squadron at the Naval Air Station, Quonset Point, R. I.

The aviation electronics technician is a 1968 graduate of Appleton High School-West. He enlisted in the Navy in 1969.

Warren W. Winter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Winter, 1119 W. Taylor St., Appleton, has graduated from the 11th Warrant Officer Candidate Course at the Marine Corps Base, Quantico, Va.

Winter is married to the former Mary L. Rosenberg, 1030 W. Commercial St., Appleton.

Airman Timothy L. Maass, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Maass, route 2, Appleton, has graduated from the Air Force pavements specialist course at Sheppard AFB, Tex.

Maass is now qualified to maintain aircraft runways, roads, streets, sidewalks and parking areas. He is being assigned to Vandenberg AFB, Calif., for duty with the Strategic Air Command.

J. Curtis McKay Joins Lobbyists

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — J. Curtis McKay, chairman of the Republican state central committee, has joined the list of leading political organization figures in the registered legislative lobbying corps at the state capitol.

The registry in the office of the state secretary of state shows that the former Ozaukee County legislator and one-time assistant leader of the Republicans in the Assembly will represent the interests of five clients concerned about legislation. He has joined with Stephen J. Gavin, Madison lawyer, as joint legislative representative for them.

Earlier this year James Wimmer, the immediate past chairman of the Democratic state five oceans on a 25,000-mile voluntary organization, registered as a lobbyist for the first time. He also has a substantial list of clients
